TESTIMONIAL.

"The Sydney Grammar School,
"June 22nd, 1877.

"The Rev. W. J. M. Hillyar held the appointment of Lecturer in Latin at the Sydney Grammar School for three years and a half. For the greater portion of that time he took entire charge of the Latin composition of the highest form, and he also assisted in the teaching of some of the lower forms.

"It is superfluous to state that Mr. Hillyar is a sound scholar and a practised teacher; but I may, perhaps, remark that he has in a marked degree two essential qualifications—(1), thorough conscientiousness in the discharge of his duties; (2), an extraordinary amount of physical energy. My personal relations with Mr. Hillyar have always been of the most pleasant kind.

These remarkably brilliant pianos are the finest specimens of piano manufacturers' workmanship; the finish, to the minutest detail, is perfect; and the quality of TONE is of the HIGHEST CLASS.

ELVY and CO.'S ERARD COTTAGE PIANOS.
We are now showing the most admired models of this celebrated instruments, by both the London and Paris makers, in the choicest Walnut or Rosewood.

ELVY and CO.'S COLLARD COTTAGE PIANOS.
Our stock of instruments by this eminent firm is equal to any we have ever imported. The newest models, specially made to our order, are of elegant design, and have the pure ENGLISH quality of TONE in perfection.

The very large and carefully-selected Stock of SHEET MUSIC, embracing all styles and every degree of proficiency, is at HALF-PRICE, HALF-PRICE.

ELVY and CO.'S MASON and HAMLIN'S ORGANS.
These are the leading Organs of the day. In addition to the American State and European honours, they attained at the late American National Exhibition—a special distinction! We show the most approved models.
FIRST RANK

ELVY and CO.'S BORD PIANOS.
Our supplies of these instruments are in many models, and our friends will please notice that our importations are specially prepared for ourselves to order.

THE MASSIVE GERMAN PIANOS
are also represented in our Stock by makers of repute, Lipp, Schwechten, and Helling, at moderate prices.
NOTE.—IRON is largely introduced in the German Cottage Pianos, and they are well adapted for CONCERT HALLS and large rooms, as they produce a great VOLUME of SOUND, and if in positions from which they would seldom be moved, their weight and comparative non-portability would not be found inconvenient.

LAW.

SUPREME COURT.—SATURDAY, JUNE 30.

BANCO.—LAST DAY OF SECOND TERM.

BEFORE their Honors Mr. Justice HARGRAVE, Mr. Justice FAUCETT, and Sir WILLIAM MANNING.

CALL TO THE BAR.

On the motion of the Attorney-General, Mr. George Granville Miller, B.A., Trinity Hall, Cambridge, and a member of the Inner Temple, was called to the Bar of the Supreme Court of New South Wales.

ADMISSION OF ATTORNEYS.

The following gentlemen were admitted as attorneys, solicitors, and proctors of the Supreme Court of New South Wales:—

On the motion of the Attorney-General, Mr. Francis James Plomley, Master of Arts of the Sydney University, who had passed an unexceptionally good examination, was admitted.

On the motion of Mr. Butler, Q.C., Mr. Nicholas Hay, who had passed a specially good examination, was admitted.

On the motion of Mr. Darley, Mr. John Thomas Radford was admitted.

On the motion of Sir George Innes, Mr. Charles Neil Read was admitted.

On the motion of Dr. Donovan, Mr. Allan Campbell, B.A., of the Sydney University, was admitted.

On the motion of the Attorney-General, Mr. Arthur Joseph Brady was admitted.

On the motion of Mr. Butler, Q.C., Mr. Maurice O'Keefe was admitted.

On the motion of the Attorney-General, Mr. Alexander James Dodds was admitted.

On the motion of Mr. Butler, Q.C., Mr. Francis Bede Freehill, M.A., of the Sydney University, was admitted.

On the motion of the Attorney-General, Mr. Morton Hyde Fitzhardinge was admitted.

On the motion of Mr. Butler, Q.C., Mr. John Fitzgerald was admitted.

On the motion of the Attorney-General, Mr. Thomas Goodfellow, who had served under articles in England, and had passed the necessary examination in this colony, was admitted.

The following gentlemen, being attorneys, &c., of other colonies or countries, were admitted conditionally for twelve months:—

On the motion of Mr. Salomons, Mr. William Welsh, an attorney, &c., of the Supreme Court of Victoria, was admitted.

On the motion of Mr. Butler, Q.C., Mr. Willoughby Brassey, barrister and attorney of the Supreme Court of New Zealand, was admitted.

On the motion of Mr. Butler, Q.C., Mr. Henry Wrixon, an attorney of the Supreme Court of Victoria, was admitted.

On the motion of the Attorney-General, Mr. Bradford Johns, of her Majesty's Courts of Queen's Bench, &c., England, was admitted.

The conditional admission of each of the following gentlemen was confirmed:—

On the motion of Dr. Donovan, the admission of Mr. William Craig Brown was confirmed.

On the motion of Sir George Innes, the conditional admission of Mr. Frederick Coster was confirmed.

EX PARTE ALFRED GEORGE GIBBES.

Mr. Butler, Q.C., applied that Mr. Gibbes, a graduate of the Sydney University, might have his articles of clerkship certified to and dated as if the certificate had been made twelve months ago, when the articles did in fact commence, but the certificate was not then obtained, nor was Mr. Gibbes properly introduced to a Judge of the Supreme Court.

The COURT granted the application.

SEVIL V. HEATH.

This, being contentious business, was postponed till next term.

INSOLVENCY COURT

SATURDAY.

BEFORE the CHIEF COMMISSIONER.

His Honor said that he had received a letter by post from seven creditors in Harold Davis's estate, protesting against something. It was impossible for creditors to get any of their imaginary wrongs redressed by such a step as that. There was a proper mode to do it.

On the application of Mr. Darley, instructed by Mr. Billyard, at the instance of George Henry Hebden and others, his Honor made absolute an order nisi for the compulsory sequestration of the estate of Michael Nash. Schedule and statement to be filed within ten days after service of order.

The matter of George Henry Hebden and others v. James Troy was adjourned until the 2nd August, service not having been effected on the respondent.

Mr. De Lissa, on behalf of De Lissa and another, applied to make absolute an order nisi for the compulsory sequestration of the estate of Henry O'Neill. Mr. Bennett, instructed by Mr. Oliver, opposed the application, and applied for an adjournment, as time had not been given to file objections. His Honor adjourned the hearing to the 2nd August, on the respondent consenting to pay costs.

Mr. John A. Bowden applied for the release of the estate of James Baker, on the ground of payment of creditors. It appeared that sufficient notice had not been given of the application, and his Honor therefore made no order.

Mr. Salomons, instructed by Mr. Hourigan, applied for the release of the estate of William P. Bowes. It appeared that all the debts had been paid, and the requisite notice having been given his Honor made the order applied for.

In the estate of C. H. Sidney, a plan on the list for confirmation was withdrawn to allow of further debts being proved.

Accounts currents and plans of distribution were confirmed as follows:—Henry Wheeler, first dividend, 4s. 5½d.; Duncan Cameron, first dividend, 1s. 6d., and payment in full of preferent debts; R. Salmon, dividend of 1s. 7 40-117d.; W. A. Dunn, account only; William Edward Quelch, dividend of 6s. 4 68-93d.; John Hand, second dividend, 1s. 1d.; Denis M'Grath and William M'Mah, also separate estate of Denis M'Grath; accounts only; Charles Thomas Sandon, first dividend, 2s. 6d., and payment in full of preferent debts.

In the matter of Montague Lovien Salamon, his Honor ratified the directions of creditors to official assignee to sue for the recovery of debts due or any property belonging to the estate, and for the avoidance of all or any preferences given by the insolvent to any one; and also to take for the benefit of the estate any securities held by any creditor at the valuation fixed by them, or to reverse the right thereof to such creditor as he may think fit. Second, that the insolvent be permitted to retain for his own use the whole of his wearing apparel, bedding, and personal effects not exceeding £50.

SURRENDERS.

Arthur Brunder Elyard, of Brunder, Shoalhaven, butcher. Liabilities, £131 12s. 9d., of which £22 is secured. Assets, £42 2s. 9½d. Mr. Sandeman, official assignee.

Joseph Johnson, of Johnson's Ridge, Lismore, timber-cutter. Liabilities, £138 3s. 6d. Assets, £5. Mr. Lyons, official assignee.

MEETINGS OF CREDITORS.

THE SELECTION OF JUDGES.

(From "The Land" in the Sydney Mail.)

AT the next Council meeting of the New South Wales Agricultural Society, which will be held on the 4th proximo, two very important motions are on the notice paper for consideration. We refer to Mr. P. G. King's proposed alterations of rule 28 and by-law XIV. These new motions appeared in full in our issue of the 9th instant, and members of the Council are, doubtless, ere this, familiar with them. Briefly stated, Mr. King wishes a small committee appointed to obtain competent judges for the ensuing Exhibition; but this committee, which is to consist of members of the Council, is to be entirely under the control of the Council, and will have to report progress to that body every month. After the entrances have closed, but not less than a week before the opening of the Exhibition, they are to make a final report to the Council, and for the first time to name their judges. Then the Council are to consider the nominations, and select those of which they approve; but the selection does not stop here, for up to two days before the opening of the show, any member of the Council is to have the power to protest in writing against any judge in the list of approved judges, which we may state is to be posted in the rooms of the society. Then the Council will have to consider the protests, and according to Mr. King's motion, it will not be until just before the opening of the show that the absolute choice will be made.

The intention of Mr. King is clear enough; evidently he wishes to take from exhibitors the power of nominating judges, and to break down a system which has worked very badly. But we fear Mr. King has not given his motions much consideration. Had he done so he would have observed that the committee which he wishes to have appointed would have to invite judges to act before any action could be taken in the way of appointment or selection. According to the rule which he wishes to repeal, the exhibitors nominating have to state that the persons they recommend are qualified and willing to act. Here the intending exhibitors do the work which would fall to the lot of the proposed committee. Assuming these to be correct propositions, we fear few gentlemen would be found to return favourable replies to the requests of the committee. According to Mr. King's proposal, those that accepted would be in a position of uncertainty up to the opening day of the Exhibition. To make the case clearer, an invited judge, say a resident of Victoria, might start from his home to judge at Sydney, and find on his arrival that he was not required. Under the existing rules, the final selection is made about two months before the Exhibition opens, unless in the case of emergency judges, who are sometimes procured on the ground. As it is the universal wish to have strange judges from other colonies, if possible, the proposed committee should bring up their final report for the consideration of the Council at least three months before the opening of the Exhibition. Mr. King has also forgotten in his resolution to insert a clause which would preclude members of the Council that are exhibitors from taking part in the work of selection of judges for the sections in which they exhibit. In pointing out these omissions in Mr. King's resolutions, we are not actuated by a wish to discourage the principle of selection which they embody, for almost any change would be preferable to the system which allows exhibitors to nominate.

The balloting plan, which Mr. King wishes to be carried out in the horse, cattle, and sheep sections, might be adopted with great advantage. It would lead to independent judging, assuming that the judges entered the ring at different times, or held no discourse while engaged in their duties. But Mr. King's resolution does not clearly state how the ballot papers are to be filled up. If it is intended that the judges simply write, "I award No. 1 first, No. 7 second, and No. 5 third," the stewards would have some difficulty in arriving at the decision; but if each judge had the power to give a certain number of marks, say nine in each class, marks which he could distribute according to the merits of the animals, the work would be much simpler. There are difficulties in the way even here which the discussion on the motions in question may clear away. Before this, we have expressed our opinions freely regarding the difficulties which surround the work of selection of judges. We cordially agree with the speaker who at the discussion on Mr. King's paper on "Judges and Judging" said, "What we want is honest judging." With fair, qualified, unprejudiced judges, we need not be particular as to the way in which awards are made or conclusions formed.

DR. DE JONGH'S LIGHT-BROWN COD LIVER OIL.—EXPLANATION OF ITS EXTRAORDINARY EFFICACY.—Dr. Whitmore, Medical Officer of Health, St. Marylebone, writes:—"My own somewhat lengthened experience as a medical practitioner enables me with confidence to recommend Dr. de Jongh's Light-Brown Cod Liver Oil, as being more uniform in quality, more certain in its effects, more palatable, and infinitely less likely to disagree with the stomach than the Pale Oil. The practice which often prevails of mixing certain ingredients with cod liver oil, to render it agreeable to the taste, is highly objectionable, for we have it on the authority of Dr. de Jongh himself that anything which sophisticates it takes largely from its therapeutic value. If I were asked for an explanation of the marked success which for so many years has attended the administration of Dr. de Jongh's Light-Brown Cod Liver Oil, I should say that it is owing to its extraordinary medicinal, dietetic, and regiminal properties, and which are found to exist in no other medicine that I am acquainted with in such uniform combination." Dr. de Jongh's Light-Brown Cod Liver Oil is sold only in capsuled imperial half-pints, pints, and quarts by all chemists, druggists, and storekeepers. Sole consignees, Ansar, Harford, and Co., 77, Strand, London. Agents at Sydney, Elliott, Brothers.—ADV.

PROCLAMATION OF NEUTRALITY.

THE proclamation by her Majesty the Queen, in relation to the war between Russia and Turkey, enjoining her subjects to maintain neutrality, has been published in the Government Gazette of Victoria. Accompanying it is a despatch from Lord Carnarvon, enclosing a copy of a letter from the Earl of Derby to the Admiralty, in which her Majesty's pleasure is made known. The rules set forth in Lord Derby's letter are to be put in force in six days after the publication in the Gazette. The following is Lord Derby's letter of instructions:—

The Earl of Derby to the Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty.*

Foreign Office, April 30, 1877.

My Lords,—Her Majesty being fully determined to observe the duties of neutrality during the existing state of war between the Emperor of all the Russias and the Emperor of the Ottomans, and being moreover resolved to prevent, as far as possible, the use of her Majesty's territorial jurisdiction, in aid of the warlike purposes of either belligerent, has commanded me to communicate to your lordships, for your guidance, the following rules, which are to be treated and enforced as her Majesty's orders and directions:—

Her Majesty is pleased further to command that these rules shall be put in force in the United Kingdom, the Isle of Man, and the Channel Islands, on and after the 5th of May instant, and in her Majesty's territories and possessions beyond the seas six days after the Governor, or other chief authority of each of such territories or possessions respectively shall have notified and published the same; stating in such notification that the said rules are to be obeyed by all persons within the same territories and possessions.

1. During the continuance of the present state of war, all ships of war of either belligerent are prohibited from making use of any port or roadstead in the United Kingdom, the Isle of Man, or the Channel Islands, or in any of her Majesty's colonies or foreign possessions or dependencies, or of any waters subject to the territorial jurisdiction of the British Crown, as a station or place of resort for any warlike purpose, or for the purpose of obtaining any facilities of warlike equipment; and no ship of war of either belligerent shall hereafter be permitted to sail out of or leave any port, roadstead, or waters subject to British jurisdiction, from which any vessel of the other belligerent (whether the same shall be a ship of war or a merchant ship) shall have previously departed, until after the expiration of at least twenty-four hours from the departure of such last-mentioned vessel beyond the territorial jurisdiction of her Majesty.

2. If any ship of war of either belligerent shall, after the time when this order shall be first notified and put in force in the United Kingdom, the Isle of Man, and the Channel Islands, and in the several colonies and foreign possessions and dependencies of her Majesty respectively, enter any port, roadstead, or waters belonging to her Majesty, either in the United Kingdom, the Isle of Man, or the Channel Islands, or in any of her Majesty's colonies or foreign possessions or dependencies, such vessel shall be required to depart, and to put to sea within twenty-four hours after her entrance into such port, roadstead, or waters, except in case of stress of weather, or of her requiring provisions or things necessary for the subsistence of her crew, or repairs; in either of which cases the authorities of the port, or of the nearest port (as the case may be), shall require her to put to sea as soon as possible after the expiration of such period of twenty-four hours, without permitting her to take in supplies beyond what may be necessary for her immediate use; and no such vessel which may have been allowed to remain within British waters for the purpose of repair shall continue in any such port, roadstead, or waters for a longer period than twenty-four hours after her necessary repairs shall have been completed. Provided, nevertheless, that in all cases in which there shall be any vessel (whether ships of war or merchant ships) of the said belligerent parties in the same port, roadstead, or waters within the territorial jurisdiction of her Majesty, there shall be an interval of no less than twenty-four hours between the departure therefrom of any such vessel (whether a ship of war or merchant ship) of the one belligerent, and the subsequent departure therefrom of any ship of war of the other belligerent; and the time thereby limited for the departure of such ships of war respectively shall always, in case of necessity, be extended so far as may be requisite for giving effect to this proviso, but no further or otherwise.

3. No ship of war of either belligerent shall hereafter be permitted, while in any port, roadstead, or waters subject to the territorial jurisdiction of her Majesty, to take in supplies except provisions and such other things as may be requisite for the subsistence of her crew, and except so much coal only as may be sufficient to carry such vessel to the nearest port of her own country, or to some nearer destination; and no coal shall again be supplied to any such ship of war in the same or any other port, roadstead, or waters subject to the territorial jurisdiction of her Majesty, without special permission, until after the expiration of three months from the time when such coal may have been last supplied to her within British waters as aforesaid.

4. Armed ships of either party are interdicted from carrying prizes made by them into the ports, harbours, roadsteads, or waters of the United Kingdom, the Isle of Man, the Channel Islands, or any of her Majesty's colonies or possessions abroad.—I have, &c.,

DERBY.

SHOCKING DEATH BY BURNING.

(Abridged from the Ovens and Murray Advertiser, June 26.)

AN inquest was held yesterday, at Battley Town, on the body of Margaret Cranston, a well-known old woman who for years past had resided at Battley Town.

George Holthius deposed: Am a miner, residing at Yellow Creek; last Saturday evening, about 6 o'clock, I came from the Everton station, and on coming round the corner, near this house I heard screams; I ran up, and when I got close to the verandah of the house I saw the now deceased with her clothes on fire, running into the house; she seemed to be on fire all over; her clothes were in a smouldering state; she was then screaming out, "Is that you, George? I am all on fire;" ran into the room where she was and pulled the clothes off her; the sofa in the room where she was was next the fireplace, and it was on fire; tried to put the fire of the sofa out, and she came at that time so close to the fire, saying she was so very cold, that the remainder of her clothes (stays and parts of clothing produced I identify as what she had on) caught on fire again; then pulled off all the remaining part of the clothes, except some part round the waist that was not burned, and I carried her into another room, and put her in bed and covered her over with blankets; she asked me for a drink, and I gave her a small glass of beer; she told me at that time that her clothes caught fire, and that she ran outside, and had been there some time screaming before she saw me; ran for assistance; have known the deceased about twenty-two years; she was always in the habit of sitting very close to the fire on the hobs; have seen her clothes burned before—a fortnight previous to this; she told me then that her clothes had been on fire; I saw that the clothes were burned; she is sometimes in the habit of drinking; of late she has been of intemperate habits—in a sort of childish state, not like the same woman she used to be.

By the jury: There was no person near the house when I came up; she was all alone; the house would have burned down if I had not been there; she was sober at dinner time; when I called with vegetables that day she had no drink, and had a very hearty dinner; she told me at dinner time that she had a little drop of gin left in the house; the deceased was about sixty-eight years of age; she had been married twice; her last husband is dead about five years; she had thirty-two acres of land and this house; she had no money in the bank; she lived all alone.

Mary Bennett, the wife of George Bennett, a farmer, residing at Everton, deposed: I was called last Saturday evening, about half-past 7 o'clock, by the last witness (George Holthius) to come and see Mrs. Cranston, who he told me was burned; I came, and she told me that she was burned to death; I wrapped her up in oil; all her chest, back, body, and all down to her feet were very much burned; the skin was all off her back; all the front of the body was burned brown; her neck was very much burned; a portion of her face and ears and the back of her head were also burned; she told me she caught her dress on fire, and that she ran outside; she died the next morning, the 24th instant, at 10 o'clock; a doctor was sent for next morning, the 24th instant, at 7 o'clock, but she was dead before he arrived.

The jury found that Margaret Cranston died at Battley Town on the 24th June, 1877, from the effects of severe burns received by her clothes catching fire while under the influence of liquor on the previous day.

AMERICAN TRADE AND THE WAR.

(From the Times.)

OUR Philadelphia correspondent writes under date April 13:—

"If Russia and Turkey were aware of the very great service they could do the United States by expediting their impending war, hostilities would probably begin at once. America looks to this as the only thing that can restore her business affairs from their distressing prostration. It was thought that a settlement of the Presidential dispute would revive cheerfulness and restore prosperity; but the trouble seems as bad as ever, and in some respects is even worse. Even the settlement of the South Carolina and Louisiana troubles does not seem to bring relief. So we have come to the conclusion that the power of commanding recuperation is not in us, and that an outside force must be exerted before it can be secured. This outside force, by common consent, is declared to be an European war. The cable has brought rumours of war in plentiful supply this week, and it has been remarkable how all classes have welcomed them as the earlier breaths of the returning success of prosperity. Not that we love war, or want to be involved in it, or desire to be responsible for it. Nothing of this kind for America, but we Americans want the fight to begin, so that the American share of the work may begin at feeding, clothing, arming, equipping, and supplying the combatants. We deplore the carnage and waste of battle, but the wider the field the greater the waste, the more there will be for us to do and the more for us to sell. Hence the news is eagerly scanned, and the warlike rumours stiffen the prices of breadstuffs, provisions, and naval stores, put up ocean freights, and give every one the idea that the actual war, when it comes, will bring us a return of prosperity. Such has been the case this week—a general advance all along the line of produce prices following the reports of the new difficulties between Russia and Turkey.

"That something is needed to stimulate business in the United States is universally admitted. Such branches of manufacturing industry as are producing any large amount of goods, like the cotton, woollen, and iron trades, are complaining that prices are unremunerative. In the iron trade it is generally believed that the rolling mills are either losing money or else losing reputation by making inferior iron. Several foundrymen at Pittsburgh declare that they cannot make iron except at a loss, and they prefer shutting down if prices do not get better. There seems a large enough demand for these products at present rates, but no one can make any profit. Coalmining has begun in several sections with some vigour, but there is the same complaint of unremunerative prices. Wages are cut down so low that it is becoming a problem how some of the operatives live, yet there are constant efforts to cut down wages still lower. The very few strikes that now occur are against reductions, and their usual end is against the working men. The tendency of everything seems downward—prices, values, wages, and profits. The nation is practising an enforced economy of the most rigid character.

"For a good while past these influences have been operating in the stock markets, depressing the shares of all the transportation companies, and the 'Bears' have had a carnival, making fortunes by the steady and almost uninterrupted decline in prices. The solid corporations have been affected the same as the 'fancies,' the dividend-paying shares suffering along with the others. Raid after raid has been planned against old, reliable securities, the stability of which has been unquestioned, and the attacks of the 'wreckers' have been carried out with almost unvarying success. The particular feature of the Stock market that seems to have chiefly contributed to these results, is the absence of any large investment demand for these securities. The people who have money seem actually afraid to buy anything, and those who hold stocks, one after another lose faith in their treasured heirlooms and let them go at reduced prices, fearful lest the depression may be worse. Thus there is a plethora of unused money in the banks with no demand for it, a general desire to sell, and a condition of affairs in the Stock and Money markets that puzzles our most astute financiers. The wave of depression has affected everything excepting the Government loans. To that sheet anchor the public still cling.

"Now if an European war can change all this, sad as it may be for you, what a benefit it will be to us. You may deprecate, but can pardon our anticipations of the advantages such a conflict will bring the United States. If it restores prosperity here, the reflex benefit to England with so large a capital invested in America will be great. We expect the war to quicken the demand and advance the prices of breadstuffs, provisions, and naval stores, and advance ocean freights and give our vessels increased employment. This will move our crops and thus enlarge the traffic and earnings of the railways. While the downward tendency of the Stock market will be suddenly turned upward, the farmers, who are four-fifths of the population, will be paid for their corn, and can then buy manufactured goods. Thus the whole fabric of American commercial prosperity will be given renewed vigour by the firing of a gun on the Danube, and in this way it is expected that the most serious, protracted, and widespread depression that has yet visited the United States will be removed.

"A peculiar feature in the prevailing depression is the decline in rents in the large cities, and the increasing number of idle buildings. This has its effect in curtailing the ability of real-estate owners to pay the onerous taxes levied, so that the delinquent lists, especially in New York, grow to large proportions. The condition of the wealthy man, whose fortune is in unproductive and unsalable real estate, subject to 2 and 3 per cent. per annum tax, can be imagined. Hence there is a general outcry against heavy taxation, and the plundering political 'Rings,' who impose it. The depression thus will in time work the positive good of breaking up these 'Rings' and reducing taxes. It is also breaking up worthless and rotten corporations in all directions. Scarcely a day passes that some bank or trust company does not collapse, or official prove defaulter, the declining Stock market preventing the crime or misfortune being longer concealed. This weeding out is making the atmosphere purer, though it causes untold misery to many innocent victims, whose poverty results from their losses. This will go on probably till we get down to 'hard pan,' wherever that may be, though we had hoped that this lowest point was reached long ago."

SOCIAL POSITION.

(From the Whitehall Review.)

WHEN George the Third was King, and when English gentlemen wore full-bottomed wigs, coloured velvet coats, shorts, silk stockings, and swords, a man's position in society was easily determined. But times and manners are both changed, until now, thanks to sartorial ingenuity of Snalpage and Kerslake, et hoc genus omne, he would be a clever man who, by outward appearance, could discriminate between the Duke of Barcacres and Mr. Moneybags, of Mincing-lane.

There is nothing which an average Englishman strives so much to attain unto as a higher social position than that in which he was born. It is only in the very highest ranks of society that this ambition does not exist. When a man is a peer, or even a commoner of good family, it is impossible for him to rise socially higher, and he is therefore obliged to be content with what he has, without running after what he has not. But in every class below the peerage there displays itself a more or less feverish anxiety to rise a step higher than that to which one has a just claim. Among women this craving for social advancement is even more general than among men. Nor was the desire for "position" ever more general than it is at the present day. The reason is obvious. Money is made much more quickly than it used to be. For one nouveau riche that could be pointed out forty years ago, there are now at least two score. And when a man has "made his pile" how can he expect to enjoy the days he has yet to live unless he advances his social position by at least a step or two? Hence it is that daily and almost hourly we are amused at the sight of parvenus, who are ever attempting to rise in society but rarely attain the desired end. It is true that there are back-doors which can be opened with golden keys, and through which the ascent to the much-desired position is both surer and safer than by ordinary means. Thus, when the daughter of the wealthy contractor, or fortunate financier, has attained the proper age, there is always a push made to have the girl and her mother presented at Court. That the younger women, who have, in all probability, never known what poverty or struggling means, should desire this undeniable advantage is only natural. Education, a good governess, and the most expensive professors have done a great deal for them; and they may, as far as ordinary appearance or conversation goes, hold their own with the highest in the land. But it is not so with their parents. A man has so many opportunities of mixing with others of his sex who are better born and better educated than himself, that it is often comparatively easy for him to assume a social standing which he does not properly possess. With his wife it is far different. As a rule no woman changes after she has passed twenty-five or twenty-six years of age. If she be vulgar then, she is vulgar always; if ignorant then, she is ignorant always; if she drops her "h's" then, she will continue to do so until doomsday. Why does such a woman thirst to be presented to the Queen? Be that as it may, desire it she does, partly for the sake of her daughters, but chiefly because it will advance her own social position. How the scheme is to be carried out, greatly troubles her for a time. But, as the old song says, "The man that has money may do as he pleases;" and, for the matter of that, the woman too. There are always to be found in London certain elderly ladies of good blood; but, alas! poorer than their own maids. They cannot dig; to beg they are ashamed; and so, having the entrée at Court, they make a business of presenting to Royalty such of their own sex as require their good offices, and are willing to pay handsomely for what, in other businesses, would be stigmatised as "dirty work." A cheque for fifty guineas as a retainer when the subject is first mooted, and another of equal value when the business is over, is not much to pay for an introduction to Royalty. Paterfamilias—much against his own sense of propriety, it must be admitted—manages somehow or other to go to the levée. There is always some male friend who is under some obligation to him, who has a certain social standing, and who is ever ready to "present" any one, provided the transaction "leaves a margin for profit." Unlike the needy lady of good family under whose auspices the mother and daughters appear at the Palace, the man who presents the nouveau riche to royalty does not receive a piece of coloured paper addressed to Coutts' or Drummond's, but expects another kind of remuneration. He looks forward to be—or perhaps he already has been—put up to a "good thing," by which he can safely increase his too scanty income for the year. And when all this has been gone through—when father, mother, and daughter have all made their bow to her Majesty or the Prince of Wales—what a triumph it is for the family! How they can lord it over their more humble friends who have not been, and are never likely to be, presented! And yet, as Mr. Toole says, they "are not happy." What with court-dresses, jewels, trains, and feathers for his women; new liveries for his coachman and footman; new harness for his carriage horses; the honorarium to the lady presenter, the "good thing" he has put his male presenter up to; and his own court-dress, the father of the family must be at least £1000 or £1500 the poorer after the business is over. And all this for what! Merely that his wife and daughter may be able to boast that they have been to Court. Does the fact in any way enhance their social position? Are they a single step nearer the happy hunting-grounds where those of genuine high birth and standing disport themselves? Not at all. They may, indeed, get an invitation to a royal garden-party at Chiswick, or, if they are in great luck, be asked to one of the royal balls at Buckingham Palace; but their social position is exactly what it was, and beyond the supreme happiness of telling every one they have been to Court, they are exactly what and where they were before.

GALATZ AND RUSTCHUK.

THE correspondent of the Bsemirnaya Illustratsia, published in St. Petersburg, furnishes the following account of the towns of Galatz and Rustchuk (issue of 2nd April, 1877):—

Galatz, one of the first mercantile towns of Moldavia, is situated on the left bank of the Danube, not far from the spot where the latter river receives the waters of the Sereth near Lake Boatish. After Bucharest and Jassi, the first place amongst the towns of Roumania belongs indisputably to Galatz. The town is very well built and surrounded by a wall. It has many orthodox churches, a monastery, a hospital, a large and wealthy bazaar always filled to overflowing with merchandise, abundance of shops, with houses of stone in all the principal streets. Galatz is considered one of the most important ports on the Danube, and plays a role in the mercantile communication between west and east. The entire import of goods necessary for the inhabitants of Moldavy and Wallachia is carried on via Galatz, which in this way serves as a trading centre of the United Principalities. Hither are imported hides and tobacco from Russia, and from Germany cotton-textures, crockery, china, glassware and furs. The Turkish merchants furnish admirable morocco leather, spices, and perfumes (amongst the latter is the well known so called odogach, which is very highly prized), while Jews and Greeks bring, in great quantities, precious stones, gold-work, cloths, silken textures, and various furs. Besides the above, the following are also found amongst the imports:—Sugar, coffee, rum, oil, dried fruits, rice, and cotton. Amongst the goods which are exported from Roumania via Galatz beyond the frontier, the following are found in the greatest quantity:—Grain, salt, tallow, oil, nuts, cheese, white wine, tobacco, linseed, wood for building, ox-hides, sheep-skins, and lastly plain wool. The anchorage off the town is perpetually filled with quantities of Russian, English, Turkish, Greek, Sardinian and Sicilian vessels. Fairs are frequently held. The environs of Galatz are distinguished by fertility, while the inhabitants of the surrounding country, belonging to Galatz, occupy themselves in wine-making and agriculture, and cultivate tobacco plantations. From an historical point of view, the town of Galatz is remarkable for the bloody battle which took place here in 1789 between the Russians and the Turks, the latter of whom were completely routed, the town being captured and burnt. Later, in 1821, it was the scene of a battle between the Turks and Greeks. Near Galatz is found the ancient city of Akisopolis.

Rustchuk, the chief town of the Vilayat of Tun (or in Bulgarian, Russe), is considered a fortress of the first order. It is situated on the right bank of the Danube, which is both steep and rocky, at its conjunction with the river Lom, on an elevation raised thirty-five feet above the level of the river, and is surrounded by a ditch and an earthen rampart. The inhabitants of Rustchuk number as many as 23,000, belonging to the following nationalities:—Turks, Bulgarians, Greeks, Armenians, and Jews. The Turks form by far the majority, amounting to five-sixths of the entire population. The situation of the town is sufficiently picturesque, though the city itself has nothing special to boast of in an architectural respect; the main street alone (called the Consul's-street), which runs in a straight line parallel to the Danube, being composed of houses of European architecture, painted yellow, the greater number of which are surmounted by flag-poles with the consular flags. As regards the remaining streets of the town, they are filthy, as is invariably the case where the Turkish element is found to prevail in city populations. The houses are numbered at upwards of three thousand, and are for the most part built of wood; they are low, and not remarkable for beauty or finish, though usually surrounded by extensive yards and gardens, which give them an appearance of liveliness. The solitary ornament of Rustchuk is formed by the delicate graceful little columns of the numerous minarets, which are surmounted by conical-shaped roofs terminating in a point, and by circular balconies which completely surround the upper parts of the minarets. Amongst the celebrated buildings of the town may be classed what may be called the original edifice of Turkish baths, the enormous cupola of which completely smothers the crowded mass of small buildings around, which have but a dull view of God's world through their tiny little windows closed by means of iron gratings. From a commercial point of view Rustchuk occupies a sufficiently prominent place amongst the towns of Turkey. It serves as an entrepot for goods dispatched to Austria and Germany, or imported thence. A good landing-stage does much to assist the successful development of the trade of the town. There is also in Rustchuk a considerable amount of industry, and woollen, cotton, and silk materials of excellent quality are manufactured there. Neighbouring inhabitants prefer to occupy themselves in various trades to devoting their energies to their own fertile fields, in the cultivation of which too little care is shown. Rustchuk enjoys the reputation (although wrongly) of being the inaccessible support of the Porte. At the time of the campaign of 1809 and 1810 it served the Russian troops as a centre for military operations against the Turks, and was taken by assault, though the victory cost the Russians dearly. At the opening of the campaign of 1811 the Turks turned their whole attention to this fortress. The Russians were compelled to act on the defensive, owing to the insufficiency of troops, the main body of which was then drawn off towards the Russian western frontiers in the expectation of war with the French. General Kutuzof, who succeeded Duke Prozorefski in the command of the Russian troops in Turkey, perceived the uselessness of preserving a defensive attitude, and hastened to abandon it in a brilliant manner. In the beginning of June he marched out of Rüstchuk, and crossing the Danube, hastened to meet Wazeer Ahmet, the well-known defender of Brailof. Kutuzof had only 14,000 men at his disposal, while Ahmet led a body of 60,000 troops, with 78 guns, from Razgrad towards Rustchuk. The opposing armies met at a distance of one mile from Rustchuk, and a bloody battle ensued, from which the Russians, in spite of the smallness of their numbers, issued as conquerors. At the close of the battle, Kutuzof again crossed the river into the town, and afterwards returned to Russia. In 1854 only field artillery acted against Rustchuk and the town was for that reason able to hold out until the retreat of the Russian troops from Silistria. At the present time the town is being strongly fortified. The buildings of the Rustchuk-Varna railway are being protected by crown works and by a half-bastion; the small dockyard and harbour at the mouth of the Lom are protected by the guns mounted on the principal rampart of the town, consisting of an octagon bastion, long parks, and nine small bastions. The dry ditch has a depth of six metres and a width of 14. There are no casemate quarters for the garrison. On the neighbouring heights several star forts and redoubts have been built.

EPPS'S COCOA.—GRATEFUL AND COMFORTING.—"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately-flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette. The barque Van Dieman, from Liverpool, left Tuskar on the 22nd March, had strong S.W. gales to off Cape Finisterre on the 31st, then moderate weather, N.E. trades only very light; was ten days from 6° N. to the Equator, which was crossed on the 27th April in 27.40 West, had moderate S.E. trades, had a S.E. gale after passing Tristan d'Acunha on the 18th May, rounded the Cape of Good Hope on the 25th May, same date spoke the British Consul, for Coromandel, 69 days out from Sunderland, also Janet Cowan, from Liverpool for Galle, 67 days out. The easting was run down in parallel of 42° S., very changeable weather prevailing, passed the meridian of Cape Leuwin on the 17th June, rounding Tasmania on the 24th June, had a very heavy gale off Flinder's Island on the 27th, veering to S.W. with a tremendous sea, the decks being constantly filled, arrived off the Heads on the 29th, and got into anchorage June 30. The vessel has a very heavy cargo of iron and salt.

The Boomerang (s.) left Rockhampton on Tuesday, 26th June, at 9 p.m., at 9.30 p.m. on the 27th off Sandy Cape, passed Cape Moreton at 3.30 on the 28th, North Solitary at 10 p.m. on the 29th, Smoky Cape at 9.50 a.m. on the 30th, Barrenjuey at 1 p.m. on the 1st instant, and arrived alongside the wharf at 4 p.m. the same afternoon. Experienced strong southerly winds and clear weather as far as Smoky Cape, from thence to the end of passage fresh southerly winds and very thick weather and heavy sea.

The Balclutha (s.) left Maryborough on Wednesday, the 27th ultimo, at 8.30 a.m., crossed Wide Bay bar at 2.30 p.m., and entered Moreton Bay by the middle channel at 10 p.m. the same day; 2.30 a.m. on the 28th, anchored in the river; weighed again at daylight and proceeded, arriving at Brisbane at 7 a.m.; left again on the 29th at 11.15 a.m., and cleared Moreton Bay by the South Passage at 3.20 p.m. the same day; passed Smoky Cape on the 30th at 10 p.m., and entered Sydney Heads at 7.30 p.m. on the 1st instant. She experienced light variable wind with fine weather to Brisbane; thence strong south wind and thick squalls of rain and head sea the remainder of the passage. Passed the s.s. Fiona at 8.45, and the s.s. Clarence at 9 a.m. the 1st instant, south of Seal Rocks, both bound north.

The Blackbird (s.), from Cooktown, via Cairns, Townsville, and Brisbane, left Cooktown June 18th, 3 p.m., arrived at Cairns on the 19th, 4.30 p.m.; left Cairns on 20th, at 7 a.m., arriving in Townsville on the 21st; left again on same day at 10 p.m, arrived in Brisbane on the 25th, at 6.30 p.m.; left Brisbane on the 26th, at 11 a.m.; passed Smoky Cape on the 27th, at 7 p.m.; arrived Newcastle on the 28th, at 6 p.m.; left Newcastle on the 29th, at 4 p.m.; entered Sydney Heads at 12 o'clock. Experienced strong S.E. gales from Cooktown to Gloucester Island, and strong head winds to Brisbane. Remainder of passage light variable winds.

The Wotonga (s.) left Melbourne at 12.40 p.m. on the 28th passed Wilson's Promontory at 9.15 p.m. same day rounded Cape Howe at 1.10 p.m. on the 29th, passed Cape St. George at 1.45 a.m. on the 30th, and entered Port Jackson Heads at 8.30 a.m. same day. She experienced light favourable winds and fine pleasant weather to Montague Island, thence to Sydney light variable and cloudy weather. Passed Adela (s.) at 10 a.m. on the 29th, steaming south-west, and Alexandra (s.) at 5 p.m. on the same day, twenty miles south of Montagu Island, standing south, and several sail beating to the southward, one a schooner with fore topmast gone.

The cable ship Agnes having completed the repair of the Straits cable returned from Tasmania on Saturday morning.

The Monaro has had moderate variable winds throughout the passage, with fine weather. Cargo: 25 kegs butter, 100 cheeses, 50 bags bark, 25 bags bacon, 10 bales leather, 30 hides, 5 casks tallow, and sundries.

The Commonwealth has received pratique, and has been towed up the harbour.

We are informed that a copy of the letter has been retained for further signatures.

A Precaution.—The Liverpool correspondent of the Times states that an officer of Her Majesty's Transport Service is now at the port "making surveys of vessels which would be available for the Government service in the removal of troops in the event of this country becoming involved in war. This is being done purely as a precautionary measure."

Accident on the Railway Works near Cootamundra.—On Thursday morning (the Yass Courier reports), about 7 o'clock, an accident occurred on the railway line about seven or eight miles on the Murrumburrah side of Cootamundra, which resulted in a broken leg, but which might have been attended with fatal injuries. It appears that a man named Benjamin Conolly was engaged running a trolly laden with sleepers and rails, and on reaching a bridge one of the wheels came off, causing the trolly to tip up, and the sleepers, &c., to fall off. One of the sleepers struck Conolly and knocked him over the bridge, a distance of fourteen or fiteen feet. The unfortunate man's right leg was fractured by the fall, and he was considerably bruised about the shoulders and chest. Conolly was taken on to Murrumburrah and forwarded by first train to Yass, and reached the hospital about 4 o'clock in the afternoon. Dr. Perry attended to the sufferer, who is progressing favourably.

Infirmary Items.—The following are the cases dealt with on Saturday at the Sydney Infirmary:—William Gleeson, cut on arm; Charles Irvin, cut hand; William Chandler, scalp wound; and Patrick Ewen, bruised finger.

The Sydney Morning Herald.

MONDAY, JULY 2, 1877.

The Government has generally been well supported by its followers. The progress of the Estimates has been wearisome in its slowness; but much less progress would have been made than has been made, if members on the Ministerial side had not kept steadily to their work, and determined to sit out any amount of superfluous talk, night after night, in order to ensure some progress, however little. On Wednesday night, or rather on Thursday morning, their patience appears to have broken down, or perhaps their vigilance failed, and a count-out was effected. The Minister for Works was told, the other day, when the question of providing a steamer for members of Parliament at the boat race was before the House, that if he would be courteous to hon. members he might get his Estimates through flying. Has Mr. Hoskins been lacking in courtesy, or was the hint given without sufficient consideration? A night spent without getting beyond the bare items of expenditure for the Public Works Office was not an encouraging beginning for his department; and the experience of Thursday night was still less encouraging.

It can hardly be denied that the ways of the Assembly with the Estimates are strange. The House is composed for the most part of business men,—of men who are supposed to know something of the value of time, of the importance of direct action in matters of business, of the truth that lies in the old adage, "a place for everything and everything in its place." The House is now discussing, at the close of June, the items of expenditure on the public service for January last. Certain establishments have been kept at work during the past six months, and the House is now asking itself whether it shall vote money to pay for the service they have rendered. These proceedings appear absurd if their meaning is closely examined. The system of submitting the Estimates to the Committee of Supply for consideration in detail is in theory a means of keeping an efficient check upon the expenditure. It is carried out in such a way as to render it a matter of form so far as one-half of the year's expenditure is concerned, for the process is not entered upon until half the money has been expended. But the case is made worse by the manner in which the consideration of the Estimates is conducted. Instead of confining attention to the Estimates before them, hon. members spend the greater part of the time in discussing all sorts of questions of public policy and administration. The committee is asked, for instance, by the Government to vote the salaries (already half earned) of certain engineers, surveyors, clerks, and porters, who must be employed and paid, unless a radical change be made in our system of government; and hon. members reply by raising a debate upon the question whether the Government has been sufficiently watchful over the public interest in some of its transactions with members of the House and people outside. It is true that the salaries were those of the Harbours and Rivers Branch, and that the transactions had reference to important public and private rights in Sydney harbour, over which it is quite proper to exercise a vigilant control. But that did not create any direct or logical connection between the transactions and the salaries, so as to touch the question whether the latter should or should not be voted. It is, or it is not, expedient to maintain a Harbours and Rivers Branch; but no one can ascertain whether it is, or whether it is not, by calling into question the vigilance, or the impartiality, or the incorruptibility of a particular Government. If there be at any time a suspicion or a belief that the public business of any department has been negligently, or badly, or corruptly administered, whether by a Minister or by any of his subordinates, the matter should be dealt with directly upon a motion for inquiry, or by means of an express resolution of some sort. The practice of making the Estimates a peg on which to hang these general discussions is, however, one of so long standing, and supported to such an extent by tradition and precedent, that its unbusinesslike character passes unnoticed. It is known that the Estimates must be passed; and hon. members take advantage of the necessity for the purpose of procuring an enforced attention to matters which could well be taken up at another time and treated in a different manner.

It is not to be denied that it is constitutional, when dealing with the Estimates for a department, to enter upon a wide discussion as to the way in which the business of that department has been administered. The practice rests upon the principle that the power to stop supplies is also the power by which Parliament can enforce the redress of grievances. But the idea of stopping supplies to enforce the redress of grievances had its origin in the days when Parliament was fighting the battle of the people against the Crown; and since then, circumstances have materially changed. To be continually falling back upon this power to stop supplies, when the Government of the country is in the hands of the people's representatives, is to use it for the purpose of obstructing the people's business. If the machinery of Parliament were in efficient working order, Ministerial responsibility could always be enforced without resorting to these extremes. It may be admitted also that discussions of the kind referred to often bring out useful information; and the knowledge that they may be entered upon at any time has in itself some tendency to check malpractices. But in proportion to the value of this power to take a wide range in the discussion of the Estimates is its liability to abuse. Edged tools are dangerous in the hands of children and madmen; and this traditional right to make the Estimates the foundation for a general overhaul of the proceedings of the Government is one of those rights, the possession of which ought to be held to imply on the part of the possessor self-control, and the knowledge of how to exercise it properly.

The discussion on Wednesday was inconvenient, but the subject chiefly referred to is well deserving of discussion, but it ought to be treated in a comprehensive and practical way. The effect of the talk on Wednesday was to raise doubts, and create a feeling of dissatisfaction without leading to any substantial result. What are the true relations between the Government and the proprietors of private wharfs in the harbour? Is it, or is it not, the fact that many or most of these wharfs exist by permission only? Is proof to be had of the statement that the waters of the harbour have been encroached upon by parties who have gone beyond the line to which their permissive privileges extended; and that, after wharfs have been pushed out into the public waters, the space behind has been filled up, to make the wharfs a part of the private freehold? Has the Government the power to deal effectually with encroachments, or to demand from private wharfingers in the harbour, an equivalent for wharfage rates which might be collected but are not? These and other questions have been suggested at various times, and they are of too much importance to be left without an answer. The appointment of a competent commission to inquire into the whole subject would be a step in the interest of the public.

Mr. Hoskins's explanations on Wednesday were not so clear and satisfactory as could be desired. The hon. member was generally very positive and dogmatic as a private member, and usually appeared so thoroughly satisfied of the absolute correctness of the views he took, as to wonder how anybody could possibly think otherwise. To differ was to be blind. We have, therefore, a right to expect that there should be no mist or ambiguity about his Ministerial utterances; for now he speaks with all the facts before him. In the case of Mr. Dibbs's application for permission to extend a wharf, it was not made very plain whether Mr. Hoskins had given a permission, or had simply made a statement that he saw no objection, which statement had been construed as a permission. But it was plainly stated by him that he had refused a similar application made by the A. S. N. Company. And yet he appears to have admitted that the power to permit or to refuse lay with the Minister for Lands. It is probable that the proceedings in the matter may yet receive a full and intelligible explanation; but the discussion on Wednesday can hardly be said to have elicited one, or to have shown that the Minister for Works had acted with a clear apprehension of his powers and duties.

In calling together the city members to discuss the affairs of the Sydney Corporation, the Mayor adopted a sensible and a very necessary course. Those who read the report which we published on Wednesday last, and the statement of the city finances which appeared in our columns the day before, must see that the necessities of the case are sufficiently urgent. When a concern that has been kept going by borrowing is not in a position to borrow any more, it is high time to ask what is to be done next. This, according to the statement referred to, is the present position of the Corporation of Sydney, and this is the question propounded by the Mayor. If it is asked how can this state of things have been brought about, the answer is close at hand. The City Corporation has charge of four or five different funds. There are at least, the City, the Water, the Sewerage, the Sydney Common, and the Prince Alfred Park Funds. The City Fund is, of course, the most important of these, still it is but one among many. The income of this fund from all sources is under £60,000; its ordinary outgoings at the lowest calculation should be £100,000. Thus the resources of the City Fund alone are at least £40,000 a year less than its demands. It is not surprising that under circumstances like these the Mayor and Aldermen have done what other people generally do—have recourse to the banks. Nor is it surprising that, with an overdraft of £70,000, at 8 per cent, both the Council and the banks should begin to think that things have gone quite far enough.

The readiest remedy for such a state of things as facts and figures of this kind disclose, is an appeal for a Parliamentary grant; and a resolution to this effect was one of the results of the meeting of last Tuesday. But, if the Corporation gets the £20,000 the meeting agreed to ask for, it will hardly be in a position to meet immediate demands, much less to go on until its affairs are righted by Parliament. A grant of £20,000 would be a small thing if a deficiency of £40,000 or £50,000 a year, and an overdraft of £70,000, at 8 per cent., were all the difficulties the Corporation has to contend with. But these are not all. The Corporation has during the last two years been accommodated by Parliament with sums amounting to £55,000. If these sums had been given and received as grants, there would of course have been an end to them. They were not, however, voted as grants, but as loans, and as such, while they relieved the immediate wants of the Corporation, they added to its liabilities. If to these are added the £400,000 the Corporation has owed to the Government for the last twenty years and the £400,000 besides, which it owes for debentures, we shall have a state of things that may well provoke inquiry. There may be concerns that are after all in a much worse plight than the Sydney Corporation. Its liabilities are heavy, but its possessions are extensive. But with all its possible resources it has a ruinously small income, and no powers to increase it. Whether the Council might not by this time have had all the powers it wants, if it had bestirred itself to fight for them, is a question that need not now be discussed. The point submitted by the Mayor is that the financial affairs of the City Corporation have been getting worse and worse for years past, that the Council has been compelled to borrow largely to meet its necessities, and that its borrowing powers are now exhausted.

What is to be done to meet the necessities of the City Council? This is the question on which the Mayor wanted the opinion of the members for the city. On one point the meeting of last Tuesday was unanimous, and that is that there must be legislation of some kind. The Council has no power to increase its fund, and the only thing that can give it the power is an Act of Parliament. All this has been said and repeated ad nauseam for nearly twenty years, but the difficulty has been that of finding a Council ready to press the business, and a Government prepared to take it up. This is the difficulty at present. Every Government has in its turn acknowledged the importance of doing something to set the Sydney Corporation on a proper footing; but there has always been something to necessitate postponement, and there is something still. In the event of some action during this session, or the next, the question that arises is what can be done in justice to the city and to the country at large. It is vain to expect anything approaching to a unanimous answer to this in Parliament, or outside. The meeting of last Tuesday agreed to urge the Government to introduce such a measure as will enable the Council to enforce increased taxation. Measures to increase compulsory taxation are seldom popular, and it is probably on this account that some such action as that moved for by Alderman Young was not determined upon years ago. The course proposed, however, is the right one, and will have to be adopted sooner or later. No one has attempted to disprove that the City of Sydney is undertaxed, and that any effort to put the Corporation into working order must begin by recognising this. If it is right that streets should be lighted with gas, for example, it is fair that those who use the streets should contribute towards the expense. The power which the City Corporation wants from Parliament first of all is the power to help itself. The meeting which was held at the Town Hall admitted this, and thus did a right thing.

But a lighting rate, rates on public buildings, and a wheel tax, if all consented to, would not bring in more than about £20,000 a year. It may be questioned whether this is all that ought to be raised by additional taxation, and whether anything besides a power to increase the city rate will produce the sum which the citizens ought to contribute towards the expenses of the Corporation. If, however, the rates of the city are increased by £40,000 instead of by £20,000, a large annual sum will still be required to enable the Corporation to govern the city as it ought to be governed. It was urged at the meeting referred to that such a sum should be provided by giving the municipality of Sydney the privileges accorded to all other municipalities, namely, a pound for every pound contributed by the citizens. Nothing could be fairer than this, and some such arrangement as the one named might be readily negotiated if the financial relations of the Sydney Corporation to the Government were not altogether unique. Though it must not be forgotten that the bonus given to country and suburban municipalities is large because it is intended to be temporary, and temporary because it is intended to help young corporations over their first struggles. The difficulty to begin with in Sydney is that the Corporation owes the Government nearly half a million of money. This debt may be a right or a wrong one, but Parliament has never cancelled it, and there it is. At the usual rate the interest on this sum would amount to little short of £30,000 a year. Towards the payment of this the Government has usually impounded the annual grant of £10,000. But when this has been done the difference between £10,000 and the amount of the interest on the whole of the Corporation debt has to all intents and purposes been so much paid from year to year to the metropolis by the Government.

In any scheme for righting our Corporation affairs the first question must be,—What is to be done with this debt? Is it to be insisted on, or cancelled? We see no course open but that of the Government taking over the assets and debits on the sewerage and water accounts, on the understanding that the whole business of sewerage and water supply be transferred from the municipalities to a Board of Works. The questions of sewerage and water supply are metropolitan questions and not city corporation questions simply. They belong to the suburban municipalities as truly as to that of the city. If there is a necessity for some common action in these matters now it will be greatly increased when the time comes for carrying out a new system of sewerage and water supply. Relieved from all responsibilities which are not strictly municipal, and from the incubus of its debts on sewerage and water accounts, the City Council might find itself on its feet again; and if, in addition to these, the suggestion of Mr. Stuart and Sir John Robertson is adopted, namely, that the municipality of Sydney should be placed on the same footing with regard to Government aid as other municipalities throughout the country, the Council may be able to go on, for a time at least, as it has not been able to go on hitherto.

At the Conference of Paris in 1856, the Turkish plenipotentiary laid claim to the little State of Montenegro as a province of the Ottoman Empire. Immediately on hearing of this claim Prince Danilo announced to all the Cabinets of Europe that "Montenegro would have a better right to claim half of Albania; and all the Herzegovina, since my predecessors, Princes of Montenegro and Dukes of Zeta, formerly possessed those territories, while the Turks have never possessed Montenegro." Europe is just now learning that this was no empty boast. When the Mahommedan invasion had spread over all the Serbian lands south of the Danube, and was even threatening Western Europe, Ivan Tchernoievitch left the home of his fathers, and with a band of some 8,000 fighting men, and their wives and children, took refuge in the fastnesses of Tsernogora, or the Black Mountain, as Montenegro is called in the native tongue. That was in 1478, and from that day to this the heroic little State has remained an impregnable bulwark of freedom in the midst of slavery and Ottoman misrule. A hundred times the soldiers of the Crescent have surrounded the mountain fortress, outnumbering its defenders by ten to one, but as often they have been driven back with incredible loss. The story of the latest Montenegrin victories, and of the romantic achievements of the last five hundred years, has just been told in two works which Mr. Gladstone reviews and summarises in the May number of the Nineteenth Century. When Servia was suffering defeat in the campaign of last year, and had to fall back upon the protection of Russia, two Ottoman armies, numbering 130,000 men, including garrisons, were making another attempt to storm Cettinge, the capital of Montenegro, and to subjugate or annihilate its people. The soldiers of the Black Mountain numbered 17,000, and were assisted by 2000 allies, and 6000 insurgents from other Turkish provinces. Yet though so fearfully overmatched in numbers, they drove back the invading forces, and then the armistice was concluded on the ultimatum of Russia, Dervisch Pasha's army had been reduced 45,000 to 22,000, and Muktar Pasha's from 35,000 to 18,000, of whom M. Goptchevitch estimates that 26,000 must have fallen in battle, for a loss of only 1000 on the side of the Montenegrans. Such an achievement seems scarcely credible, but it is only in keeping with the whole history of this race of heroes. Mr. Gladstone is as cautious in anticipating their future as he is eloquent in describing their past. They number less than a quarter of a million, all told; but they are physically strong and healthy, they live to great ages; they marry early; "a youth of 17 or 18 very commonly marries a girl of 13 or 14." Crime scarcely exists among them; sexual vices are unknown, and a coward, if such a prodigy could be found among so brave a people, is degraded by being dressed in woman's clothes, presented with a distaff, and then driven by the women from the "sanctuary of freedom." It is to this people that Alfred Tennyson addresses the following lines in the current number of the magazine to which reference has already been made.

"They rose to where their sovran eagle sails,
They kept their faith, their freedom on the height;
Chaste, frugal, savage, arm'd by day and night
Against the Turk, whose inroad nowhere scales
Their headlong passes; but his footstep fails,
And, red with blood, the Crescent reels from fight
Before their dauntless hundreds, in prone flight
By thousands down the crags and thro' the vales.
O, smallest among peoples! Rough rock-throne
Of Freedom! Warriors beating back the swarm
Of Turkish Islam for five hundred years.
Great Tsernogora! Never since thine own
Black ridges drew the cloud and brake the storm
Has breathed a race of mightier mountaineers."

Our Special Telegrams from London.—We need rdly say that the course of events in Europe have become t only increasingly interesting, but of increasing importance the Australian colonies; and it is of the utmost consequence that the people should be put into possession of the llest possible information respecting the war in East, and the relationships existing between various European Powers. With this view keeping our readers well informed on these subjects we have made arrangements for the transmission m London, from time to time, as occasion may require, special telegrams, in addition to our ordinary messages warded by Reuter to the Australian Associated Press. e first of these messages was received at an early hour s morning, and will be found in our telegraphic news umn.

Divorce Court.—Monday, July 2.—Wallace v. allace, to make decree nisi absolute.

Legislative Assembly.—The House will meet this ernoon, and it is expected that the Government will make third attempt to proceed with the estimates for the Depart- ent of Public Works.

The Commonwealth Immigrants.—The ship Com- onwealth, detained in quarantine for about a week in conquence of measles having been prevalent on board her ring the voyage, was released on Friday last by the ealth-officer, and anchored in the Cove about eleven clock next morning. The immigrants do not appear any e worse for their detention on board ship or in quarantine, d on the whole are of a character likely to obtain employment quickly. They have expressed themselves much tisfied with the treatment they received at the hands of e Captain and the doctor during the passage, and appear lerably pleased with the prospect before them. The single rls, in charge of Miss Chase, came on shore about even o'clock last Saturday and proceeded at ce to the depot, where they were to remain til to-day. Mr. Wise, the immigration agent, ade an official inspection of the arrangements on board e vessel, resulting in her being declared free about 2 clock in the afternoon of the same day, and the remainder the immigrants being allowed to land. Previous to the rival of the Commonwealth inquiries were instituted by e immigration authorities from various benches of magisates as to the demand for and price of labour in their reective localities; answers to these have been received and eir nature will be made known to the new arrivals, and -morrow and Wednesday those who choose can procure a ee pass to any place accessible by railway or steamer here there is the largest probability of their obtaining reunerative labour. Apart from these inquiries, and during e past week applications have been received from private nployers of labour in various parts of the country, except ewcastle, for skilled labourers of all classes, but particularly arpenters, masons, bricklayers, and coach-builders. Tinsmiths are in great demand, and it is said cannot be proured in sufficient numbers while inquiries have been made r agricultural labourers and axemen at wages higher than sually prevail. On the whole there is a reasonable proability of this last batch of immigrants being speedily bsorbed in the labour market, and it is asserted that the omestic servants amongst their number will only meet a ery small portion of the demand for their class of work.

The Anti-Immigration Movement. — An open ir meeting was convened at the Haymarket Reserve on aturday night, under the auspices of the Working Men's Defence Association, with the object of protesting gainst public money being expended in the promotion of mmigration. Mr. H. Bennett, M.L.A., presided over the roceedings, but the attendance was very limited. Mr. Bennett addressed those present rather briefly, expressing his views on the recent immigration vote, which he described as being largely in excess of present requirements, and stating also that not only did he agree with the objects of the association, but that he would use his influence in and out of Parliament to prevent too great an influx of immigrants to the colony. The resolutions submitted to the meeting were taken from a series adopted by the association and introduced at its late meetings. The first of these, moved by Mr. G. Perry, was to the effect that efforts should be made to prevent too great an expenditure of the public funds on immigration. It was seconded by Mr. J. B. Douglas, who took occasion to express a view that not only was there an excessive number of immigrants arriving in the colony at the expense of the State, and that measures should be taken to end such a state of things, but that Parliament should legislate for the protection and fostering of the manufactories at present in the colony, with the view of extending their usefulness and providing employment for men on the look out for work. The resolution being affirmed, another was submitted by Mr. H. Brown to the effect that the rights and interests of the working classes should be defended and manufactures encouraged. This being seconded by Mr. J. Whalley, was agreed to, and the proceedings terminated with votes of thanks to Mr. Bennett for presiding, and the several speakers who had introduced and supported the resolutions.

Death of one of the Davenport Brothers.—Mr. W. H. H. Davenport, one of the brothers whose performances have created so much discussion in England, America, and more recently in the colonies, died of consumption, at the Oxford Hotel, yesterday morning. The deceased was a native of Buffalo, U. S. A., and first appeared in connection with his brother and Professor Fay, twenty-three years ago, as exponents of what have been termed spiritualistic seances. He arrived in Sydney a few days ago from Auckland.

Technical Education.—Mr. Frederick Bridges, Inspector of Schools, has recently formed a free mensuration class, at the Sydney Mechanics' School of Arts, for the benefit of artizans and apprentices, members of that institution. Mr. Bridges has already received much encouragement to persevere in his gratuitous labours; and the great utility of this class must make it a valuable part of the Working Men's College shortly to be initiated in connection with the Metropolitan Mechanics' Institute.

CHINESE IMMIGRATION IN QUEENSLAND.—The Brisbane Courier of Friday remarks:—"In our telegrams to-day will be found one from Sydney relative to the feeling manifested both by the Government and the Opposition in the Parliament of New South Wales on the Chinese difficulty in this colony, which we publish with much satisfaction. It has been made a matter for ironical congratulation that the action of our Legislature in relation to the Chinese question, and the subsequent action of Mr. Douglas in appealing to the other colonies, had the approbation of Mr. Graham Berry and Mr. David Buchanan, and of them alone, but we think irony will be rather out of place when it is found that both Sir Henry Parkes and Sir John Robertson so cordially sympathise with our efforts in this colony to stay the over-running of our Northern territory by the Chinese. We have reason to be gratified at the sympathy expressed both in Victoria and New South Wales, and we have little doubt that we shall in time have a response of a similar character from the other colonies. Good will yet come of this Chinese trouble if it should be the means of establishing the principle that Australian interests must not be sacrificed to Imperial arrangements with foreign Powers."

ATTEMPTED SUICIDE.—The Rockley correspondent of the Bathurst Times writes:—"An unsuccessful attempt at suicide was made at Isabella on Wednesday last, by James Stapleton. About a fortnight since, Stapleton received a fall from a horse, and has not been 'right in his head' since. On the above day, he returned home from work as usual, and having adjusted a rope to the beam of the house, endeavoured to put an end to his existence by suspending himself therefrom. Fortunately, his attempt was frustrated, for his mother, who had been away a short distance, returned just in time to save his life. It was some time, however, before animation was restored."

EXTRAORDINARY ESCAPE OF AN OLD WOMAN.—The Castlemaine Representative gives that an old woman named Elizabeth Poynter, aged 78, was knocked down yesterday morning at Dawe's crossing on the railway, by the special train, which passed at half-past 11. The poor old creature is feeble and deaf, and has been in the habit of crossing the line at this gateway on her road to and fro for firewood from the bush. The special train left Melbourne at 9 a.m. this morning for the convenience of some of the bookmakers and racing public, and did not stop at Castlemaine; consequently, when it reached the crossing at which the accident occurred, the train must have been travelling full speed. The poor old woman could not have been right on the line, or she would inevitably have been killed outright, and apparently the engine-driver and guard of the train could not have been aware of the occurrence, for the train did not stop. In fact, no one seems to have seen the accident take place, and the sufferer is hardly in a condition to give any account of the affair. She was found on the line by a neighbour, with her face and head cut and bleeding, and one of her fingers severed. Sergeant Coakley was communicated with, and carefully conveyed the poor old creature to the hospital, where she is carefully attended to; but at her advanced age the shock to the system is sufficient to render her recovery doubtful. On inquiry we learn that the sufferer is conscious, but that is all that can be said.

SAD CASE OF DROWNING.—The Tenterfield Independent, of the 20th June, says:—On Sunday morning last the town was thrown into a great state of excitement on receipt of the news that Mr. Edward Owens, special reporter for this journal, was found drowned in the Tenterfield Creek, about forty yards above the Scott-street crossing. The unfortunate man left this office at about half-past 9 o'clock on Saturday night last, and proceeded to the Commercial Hotel, where he had several drinks, and at about half-past 11 left with the intention of going home. Here it is conjectured by many that deceased must have mistook the road and walked into the deep hole where his body was found.

FOREIGN OFFICERS IN THE TURKISH ARMY.—A writer in the Whitehall Review says:—"I am told that on the 13th, 14th, 15th, and 16th of the present month no fewer than twelve English, nine Austrian, and five French officers took service with the Porte as majors and colonels of cavalry. It seems that the Turks will not give any of the superior commands to foreigners, but are glad enough to have their services as regimental officers. There are, and have been for many years past, many Hungarian officers in the Ottoman army, and they have always got on exceedingly well with their Turkish comrades."

AN INGENIOUS AND USEFUL ELECTRIC LIGHT.—An ingenious little electric light apparatus (says the Morning Journal) has been invented by Mr. Eacle, of Paris, and is applicable to watches, walking-sticks, and such like. The watch, for instance, to which it is applied, is united by a chain to a link-bar, which may be placed in a button-hole, another chain communicates with a pile which may be carried in the waistcoat pocket; to the link-bar another chain is attached in communication with a receptacle or box containing a wick, and a "Geissler" tube, which will transmit the spark produced by the electricity. Thus the time can be easily seen in the dark. The apparatus is composed of other conducting chains coming from the pile, and of a receiver which may be perfectly independent, the receiver being provided with a wick or bobbin, and the receiver may be made like a locket or other article if desired; communication between pile and locket or other article may be produced by means of a button or other suitable appliance placed in any convenient position. The chains may be formed or composed of two wires and surrounded by insulating material, which latter may be covered with some precious metal or other material, as fancy or taste may dictate. The lighting material may be carried by the watch itself, or the light-generating apparatus may be provided with a case to hold the watch, or other object to be lighted up, in such manner that the glass which covers the aforesaid case will receive the action of the lighting tube containing the "Geissler" tube, and the case itself will be independent of the object to be lighted.

MARRIAGE IN HIGH LIFE IN INDIA.—A Bombay journal relates that the marriage of the eldest daughter of his Excellency Nawab Sir Salar Jung, G.C.S.I., to Nawab Mockurrum-ood-Dowla, Bahadoor, took place on Thursday morning, May 17. The preliminary ceremonies had commenced some two days previous, and the marriage was celebrated in a grand style. The presents to the bride are truly magnificent. The jewellery consists of diamonds of the purest water and splendid rich pearls. A peculiar feature of a marriage in a Mohammedan nobleman's family is that not only the relations are made to feel the happiness and enjoyments on the occasion, but even the public partake in a considerable degree of the generous hospitality evinced by both the parents of the bride and bridegroom. Any stranger to the customs and manners prevailing at Hyderabad could easily realise this fact when he is told that the bridegroom's father expended more than a lakh of rupees presenting dresses of honour to the officers of the State and his immediate relatives. Some faint idea of the number of high men of rank and mark who attended the preliminary ceremonies may be formed from the fact that one eye-witness counted more than a hundred elephants as they knelt down before the bridegroom's palace gate within the interval of an hour to allow of their noble masters to dismount. On the other hand, his Excellency Sir Salar Jung entertains almost every evening more than a hundred guests, and the reception rooms are tastefully illuminated. On the return of the Resident, Sir Richard Meade, from Mahableshwar, a number of entertainments will be begun for the European gentry. The final presents to the bridegroom from Sir Salar Jung were much admired by the public. They consisted of an Arab horse, an elephant, a palanquin, and a state carriage, all richly decked in a true oriental style.

THE MEANING OF THE WORD "ECLECTIC."—What is the meaning of the word "Eclectic?" (asks the Daily News) is a question which Baron Huddleston has found some difficulty in settling in the case of an appeal against a conviction under the Medical Act of 1858. A person named Foulds had put on his door at Bolton, "Dr. Foulds," and on the fanlight over his door, "Dr. J. J. Foulds, Eclectic Physician." He also signed himself, "M.D., U.S., Eclectic Physician," and, in fact, put forth the long word as one that gave him a certain recognised medical position. Baron Huddleston took the view that the term Eclectic implied that Foulds was not only an M.D., but a member of a particular, chosen, and better class. The judge did not know precisely what the word meant, but supposed it meant chosen. In "Johnson's Dictionary" it is "selected, choosing at will," and Cicero is given as an Eclectic. Cicero has generally been supposed to have made a system which he found tolerably satisfactory out of what he liked best in the views of more original philosophers. Victor Cousin was the avowed founder of the modern Eclectic school of philosophy. Did Mr. Foulds try to persuade the Bolton people that he was of the same order of thinkers as Cousin and Cicero, or did he only mean that he practised medicine on a plan composed of the odds and ends of other medical wisdom? Perhaps he did not precisely define his meaning to himself, but it appears that it must cease to blazon his eclecticism on his fanlight. His previous conviction was upheld.

RELIGIOUS ORDINANCES AT SEA.—The following occurs in a letter which the Rev. W. Kelynack—who sailed for England in the Assam—sends to the Weekly Advocate:—"We were amply supplied with religious ordinances. Every day after breakfast the Bishop of Sydney read prayers in the saloon to as many of the passengers as chose to attend. And in regard to Sabbath ordinances he arranged with myself at the start that he would take the morning service, and that I should take the evening. The majority of the passengers were members of the Church of England, but so far as their attendance went, this division of ministrations was as satisfactory to them as it was to us. After the evening service we had some of the best of Moody and Sankey's hymns, in which many of the congregation gathered round in family style and sang the songs which have come to so many as a call from God, and turned them from a life of folly to one of consecration. One thing that struck me in this was the wide spread interest which these hymns have created. Here we were Churchmen and Presbyterian, Baptist and Congregationalist, and Methodist, English, Irish, Scotch, and Australian, all at home, feeling we had got a common centre in the hymns and melodies of these Americans. And notwithstanding the poetry is not always the best, nor the melodies the most rich and musical, yet when we began to sing them, it was clear that they had gripped the hearts of them who sang, and they went with a swing of fervour and spirit which showed that they have power to touch and stir the deepest feelings of our nature."

BOURKE-STREET YOUNG MEN'S SOCIETY.—A lecture in connection with this society was delivered on Tuesday night by Mr. J. H. Adamson on "The Atmosphere"—the Rev. [illegible] Gibson, president, in the chair. The lecturer, who treated the subject in an able manner, was frequently applauded, and the experiments helped considerably to rivet the attention of the audience. At the close a vote of thanks was accorded to the lecturer and his assistant.

SUICIDE BY POISONING.—On last Sunday week (the Dubbo Dispatch says) a very melancholy event occurred at Quambone (Messrs. E. Flood and Co.'s) head station. The storekeeper, Mr. Thomas Stone, was found dead in his bed, and beside him was a pannikin, with strychnine in it, and it was plain the unfortunate man had committed suicide while suffering from temporary aberration. On the evening previous, his conduct was noted as somewhat eccentric; but no one for a moment thought he premeditated the rash deed by which he robbed himself of life, and a wife and young family of a bread-winner. Deceased had, previous to entering Mr. Flood's employ, been engaged at several business houses in Coonamble.

PARIS AND ITS PEOPLE.—A gentleman who has recently returned to Gundagai from Europe informs the Times that all signs of the siege of Paris by the Germans have disappeared, and that a stranger walking through the streets would feel it difficult to believe that within the previous six years it had been besieged and taken by a foreign Power, and that subsequently it fell a prey to the Communists and the depredations of the petroleuses. Regarding the Parisians themselves our friend states that their bearing is rather that of a victorious nation eager for further triumphs than that of a people who within a few years had been compelled to sue for peace.

THE MEMBERS FOR BIRMINGHAM AND "THE CLAIMANT."—The secretary of a branch of the Magna Charta Association (the Daily News states) sent to each of the members for Birmingham a summary of the evidence produced in favour of the Claimant and asked the hon. gentlemen to assist in obtaining a rehearing of the case. In reply Mr. John Bright wrote to Mr. Charles Wilkins:—"Dear Sir,—I have to acknowledge the receipt of the paper which you have sent me on the Tichborne trial. I thank you for the friendly tone of your letter. I must, however, ask you to excuse me if I decline to enter into the question again. I have so often expressed my settled opinion upon it that I have nothing further to say." In his reply to the application, Mr. Chamberlain said he "had no doubt those on whose behalf the letter was written honestly believed that an innocent man had been unjustly treated, and under these circumstances they were right in seeking a revision of his sentence." Mr. Chamberlain proceeds:—"On the other hand, I claim equal credit for honest and conscientious opinions when I say that, having studied the reports of the case at the time, I have no doubt that the Claimant is an impostor and one of a very bad kind, since he did not scruple to slander innocent persons in order to promote his ends. But even supposing that he was what he represented himself to be, I confess I should still be at a loss to understand the sympathy which he has excited, for, by his own account, he must have been a bad son, a most determined liar, an ungrateful friend, and a seducer of women. Again, if your view is correct, it would necessarily follow that the judges who tried the case on two successive occasions, the jurymen twenty-four in number, the counsel employed, and a whole cloud of witnesses, in every class of life, should be dishonest, corrupt, or imbecile, which is an assumption so monstrous that the guilt of the Claimant appears to be a much more reasonable hypothesis. Under these circumstances, and as I do not believe there is the least doubt as to the justice of the verdict, I am unable to assist you in obtaining a rehearing of the case." Mr. Muntz, the third member for Birmingham, has taken no notice of the letter addressed to him.

THE TENACITY OF THE CHINESE.—The North China Herald of 12th May writes:—"The wonderful tenacity of the Chinese, in face of resistance and persecution, has been often enough referred to. They stay and thrive in California in spite of dislike and ill-treatment; they labour successfully in the Australian gold-fields, despite the enmity of European miners; but nowhere has their tenacity been shown so remarkably as in the Philippines. Hated by the natives on account of the prosperity which they attained by their industry and frugality, hated by the clergy on account of their obstinate paganism, they have been massacred by the people and persecuted by the Government. But there they are still, numerous and prosperous, nearly monopolising the principal industries of the islands."

A CAUSE CÉLÈBRE.—Mr. Keene, in his "Fall of the Moghul Empire" (says the Times of India), tells the story of Walter Reinhart, an Indian adventurer of the last century. The man was a Franco-German, who came out as a sailor in the French navy. Then he deserted and served under the English; and again deserting, under the French at Chandernagore. After the English had taken the place, Reinhart found employment with Mir Kasim, the Nawab of Bengal, at whose bidding he massacred the English at Patna. This was in October, 1763. Before the year was out, we had taken Patna by storm; and Reinhart, who was now known by the sobriquet of Sombre, or Sumroo, had to fly for his life to Oudh. There Shuja-ud-Dowlah protected him. After a while he married a Mahomedan woman, known from him as the Begum Sumroo, and the able ruler of a small State at Sirdhana. Reinhart died in 1778, and his wife became a Christian. She left a large property to Mr. Dyce Sombre, the son of Colonel Dyce, her minister, and of Reinhart's daughter. This Dyce Sombre went to England, where he married the daughter of the Viscount St. Vincent, and sat for some time in the House of Commons. A commission of lunacy was instituted against him in 1843; one of the proofs of insanity being a letter to the Archbishop of Canterbury, requesting his lordship to bring some lady of rank and let her fight a duel with Mrs. Dyce Sombre. On the other hand, it was alleged that these and other eccentricities were only due to his Indian birth and education. This plea, however, was disallowed, and the lunacy was considered proven. His widow married Major-General Forester, now Lord Forester, and the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council has just given judgment in a suit instituted by Lady Forester against the Secretary of State for India in Council. In 1873 a suit was decided in her favour for £30,000 as capital, and £150,000 as interest, but a question arose about costs, and this has only now been decided. Their Lordships have ruled that the appeals made on either side should be dismissed; so this cause célèbre, which has rather a romantic history, has at last ended for ever.

PREVENTION OF CORROSION OF IRON.—Professor Barff (says the Times) read a paper at the United Service Institution, in Whitehall, explaining the method which he has discovered of preventing the corrosion of iron and steel as applied to naval and military purposes. His early experiments, he said, were made in an iron tube, 10 inches long by 2 inches diameter, the two ends being closed with iron caps, and into it two iron pipes were fastened, one for the passage in of steam, and the other for the outlet of hydrogen. Into the small chamber pieces of iron were put, and the chamber itself was placed in an ordinary furnace and heated to a red heat, generated steam being passed into it. The iron was coated with thick oxide. Hydrogen gas escaped from the exit tube. The black oxide could sometimes be dusted off; at other times it seemed coherent, but on exposure to the air it was thrown off in powder or flakes. On one occasion, on taking a piece of iron out of the chamber, he noticed a brownish red tint on it, and at once concluded that some of the red oxide of iron was produced on the surface and mixed with the black oxide. The idea struck him that the presence of moisture in steam formed the red oxide which was afterwards reduced to metallic iron by the hydrogen and that the reduced iron was converted by steam into black oxide. Experiments confirmed this surmise. He had a coil of iron pipe made and attached to the iron chamber between it and the ingress tube, and so constructed that it could be put into the chamber with the furnace. The steam, therefore, passed slowly through the heated coil of iron pipe before coming into contact with the iron acted upon, and nearly the first experiment showed that a hard coherent coating adhering to the iron could be produced. The two conditions necessary to success are the exclusion of atmospheric air and the perfect dryness of the steam. Under these conditions the lateral spreading of rust already present is prevented by this system of oxidation, and under the coating of black oxide rust cannot be found.

THE OPERA.—On Saturday night Meyerbeer's opera "Roberto il Diavolo" was produced. There was a crowded attendance in pit and stalls, and a very numerous audience in the dress circle. The cast was as follows:—Roberto, Signor Paladini; Alice, Signora Guadagnini; Rambaldo, Signor Camero; Isabella, Signora Caranti-Vita; Bertramo, Signor Cesari; Alberto, Signor Ciella; Elena, Signora Pasta. It will be seen that the two tenors and the two prime donne of the company take part in the performance. Signor Camero here fills the subordinate part to Signor Paladini's Roberto, just as the latter artist did in the Huguenots to Signor Camero's Sir Raoul. The opera was presented with considerable completeness, and was much less curtailed than might have been expected. It was nearly midnight before the curtain fell, though this was not unreasonable, considering that it was a new production. And making, as it is only fair to do, proper allowance for the difficulties of the music, and the drawbacks almost inseparable from a first performance, the opera was very tolerably rendered. The solos in particular were for the most part well rendered. Signora Guadagnini gave a fine presentation of the beautiful part of Alice—Robert's good angel—and sang with great expression and taste. Signora Caranti-Vita had rather too heavy a part as Isabella, and in the famous "Roberto, O tu che adoro," she appeared somewhat nervous. Nevertheless the audience warmly demanded an encore, though this was not given. Signor Paladini and Signor Camero—the latter especially—deserve praise for their performance. So also does Signor Cesari for a vivid rendering of the great part of Bertramo. The chorus was tolerable. It was gratifying to find that three of the ballets in the third act were retained with their beautiful music; and here Signora Pasta as the Spectre Abbess rendered valuable service. Her movements in the ballet were in accordance with the intention of the scene, and were graceful without being liable to any charge of vulgarity. Altogether the performance is well worth hearing.

RIDON'S TYCOON CIRCUS.—This place of amusement was crowded on Saturday night. During the stay of this company in Sydney, now a period of five weeks, the performances have gradually grown in public favour; and during last week the spectators were more numerous than ever. It must be added that the company has really deserved the patronage extended to them. The Japanese, both men and boys, are amongst the cleverest who have appeared here, and some of their performances are really marvellous. There are acrobatic feats which are to all appearance absolutely dangerous, and which are performed with amazing dexterity. Then there are the boys, whose contortions are extraordinary; and in addition there are the top spinning and butterfly business, the bareback horse riding, and a variety of other interesting and clever acts. These, and a good clown to the ring, make up a capital evening's entertainment, which has been supported in accordance with its merits. The farewell performances take place this evening, and the company will then leave for the country districts.

THE SCULLING CHAMPIONSHIP OF THE WORLD.

The long talked of contest in wager boats for £400 a side, and the Championship of the World, over the champion course, from Charity Point, a little above Ryde, to The Brothers rocks, just below Gladesville—a distance of about three and a half miles—took place on Saturday afternoon, and resulted in an easy victory for Edward Trickett over his opponent, Michael Rush. It is not too much to say that this contest has excited more interest, both here and in the neighbouring colonies, than any event that has ever happened in the sporting world of Australia. The fact that Trickett, who had won, twelve months ago, from the English oarsman Sadler, the proud title of champion sculler of the world, was called upon to contest the honour with one who was known to be an almost unrivalled puller, and who had some three years ago defeated Trickett with ease, was sufficient in itself to invest the race with more than ordinary interest. Hence from the time the match was made until the very day of the race, the most intense anxiety was felt and displayed by the friends of each competitor, and by the public generally, in the condition of the men, and the progress of their training. They were both in charge of able hands for this purpose, Trickett's trainer being Mr. T. Williams, who has coached through many a winner in his time, while Rush was trained by Mr. Richard Green, whose experience in these matters is of almost world-wide reputation. Under these circumstances, and from it being known that both men kept in the best of health—and both did excellent work in their time trials—the backers of each felt unlimited confidence in the man of their choice, and consequently very large sums of money were wagered on the event. It was natural that Trickett should have the call in the betting, as well from his English fame as from his use of the sliding-seat, which is usually understood to give a considerable advantage. On the other hand, it was confidently asserted by the friends of Rush that, while a cross-handed puller, like Trickett, could adopt the sliding-seat with advantage, it would be a positive detriment to one who pulled open-handed, like Rush, especially as it was known that Rush, after repeated trials, had found that he could get on better with a fixed seat. The odds in favour of Trickett have varied, from 2 to 1, to 5 to 4, which has been the ruling quotation for some days, and at which a great deal of money has been laid; but towards the close of the evening before the race, and after the final deposit of the stakes had been paid, Trickett rose in favour, and bets were taken at 7 to 4, and this was about the state of the odds up to the time of the start. It ought in fairness to be stated that, however disappointed the friends of Rush may have felt at the result of the contest, there was but one feeling with regard to the pluck and determination he evinced all through. There was never a defeated competitor who struggled more gamely up to the last moment than did Michael Rush, and if he failed to secure the victory, at all events he did his very best to deserve it. There can be no doubt that Trickett owes his success in a very great measure to the liberality of Mr. James Punch in taking him to England, and to the exertions of Mr. Henry Kelly, who trained him there. The skill and experience he thus gained, added to his wonderful physique, and his coolness of nerve, have given him an amount of address as well as grace in the management of a boat that are not often found combined with the strength and endurance that he possesses, and until some one comes forward with a larger share of these qualities, the chances are that Edward Trickett will remain the Champion Sculler of the World.

It is satisfactory to be able to state that the competitors had a clear course all the way, and were not hindered or annoyed by steamers crowding in upon them, as has too often been the ill-luck of pullers in races upon the Parramatta River. This happy state of things arose in a large degree from the admirable regulations laid down by the Marine Board for the maintenance of order, and from the energy of their officers, and the water police under Mr. Sub-inspector Fervis, in enforcing the rules. There were upwards of forty steamers, including sea-going boats, as well as harbour vessels, advertised, for each of which a station was assigned, and the positions had to be maintained until after the race had passed. There were countless other vessels present, including launches, yachts, skiffs, gigs, dingies, and every other variety of craft, all well filled, many of them crowded. It is computed that the number of people who witnessed the race, either afloat or from the points of vantage on the shores, must have been at least 50,000. It is certain the Parramatta River never saw such a show before, and it will probably be a long while before such a sight will be seen again. It is no slight proof of the excellence of the arrangements that no accident of any consequence occurred, and the whole of the immense throng were conveyed to and from the race in perfect safety. The friends of each competitor had engaged steamers specially to carry their own party. Trickett's committee had chartered the Kembla, the Monaro, and the Quandong, besides others of less size. Rush's friends had secured the Collaroy, the Ballina, and the [illegible]. All these vessels were well filled. His Excellency Sir Hercules Robinson, with Lady Robinson and suite, was present in the launch Nea. The Government steamer Thetis was used as the umpire's boat, and carried also a number of members of Parliament. Mr. Perdriau's comfortable paddle steamer Sapphire was engaged as Press boat, and she conveyed about seventy gentlemen, most of whom were representatives of different journals in this colony, who were busily engaged in their work which they had a better opportunity of performing on this occasion than is usually the case, through having a vessel of their own, which kept up with the race to the very finish. Of course, directly the great event was over, all steamers put on to return with the news to Sydney, where the greatest anxiety was felt to learn the result—so much so that the representatives of the Press, whose duties required them to hurry up to the telegraph office to transmit the news by wire in all directions, were seriously impeded in their progress by the excited inquirers who pounced upon them from all sides with the inquiry "Who won?" It may be mentioned that a fine race home from Gladesville took place between the three launches Nea, Britannia, and Bell Bird, and it is hard to say which proved the fleetest.

As soon as it was known in town that Trickett was the victor there was instantly, as if by magic, a vast display of blue ribbon, in button holes, on vehicles, and in front of shops. It would seem that Trickett's friends had been very confident of success, for in a very short space of time a string of flags was extended from the Champion's Hotel, in Pitt-street, to the opposite side, and the whole front and balcony of the hotel was decorated with banners and blue and white streamers. An immense crowd at once began to congregate about the locality, which increased so much as the evening wore on as to be a serious impediment to traffic. About half-past 8 o'clock, in response to the calls of his enthusiastic admirers, Mr. Trickett made his appearance on the balcony, and was greeted with such a torrent of cheering as is seldom heard. After bowing his acknowledgments, Mr. Trickett called for three cheers for Rush, which were heartily given by the crowd. A band in attendance then played the National Anthem, and the assemblage by degrees dispersed.

The first intimation of the result of the race that reached Sydney was brought by a pair of Antwerp carrier pigeons, belonging to Mr. Thomas Musgrave, of Miller's Point, and kindly lent by him to the Sydney Morning Herald.

The finish of the race was witnessed by many thousands of people, assembled in crowds at every spot from which a view could be obtained. Knowing the advantage sightseers would secure by taking up a position on the high land about the Sydney Rowing Club Grounds, and the shore about Bedlam Point, which is opposite the point known as The Brothers, and near the flagboat marking the end of the course, the Sydney United Omnibus Company, and the Waverley and Woollahra Omnibus Company, laid on a line of omnibuses to convey people there, and these 'buses with other vehicles and horses of almost every conceivable description thronged the whole of the way from Sydney to Five Dock from noon till the time of the race. Nothing like this immense concourse has ever before been seen in Sydney, and it was wonderful to think where all the people came from. For miles the procession extended along the road. Private carriages, buggies, cabs, spring carts, furniture vans, bakers' carts, and even drays had been pressed into service for the day, and the toiling horses struggled in vain at many parts of the road to draw the numbers of people with whom the vehicles were loaded. Even this great crowd were not all who made their way in this direction, for long streams of people came from the suburbs around and the railway stations, and joined in the pilgrimage to the river. Trickett was the choice of almost everybody, and blue ribbons and blue rosettes were displayed everywhere. Near the river below Five Dock a continuous crowd of people were pressing onwards to the places from which a view of the race could be obtained, and as the vehicles discharged the loads of passengers they had conveyed from Sydney the people increased to such an extent that it seemed extremely probable that not one half of them would be able to see what they came to look at. The grounds of the Rowing Club were filled with persons admitted by ticket, and on the heights and about the beach in this locality the people crowded as thick as bees. Then, from there all the way down the river bank past the flagboat, a very large number of sightseers gathered, while on the Gladesville side of the river there was another great crowd for some distance along. The river itself about this part was alive with boats, steam launches, and steamers. From The Brothers to Gladesville numbers of boats, filled with people, were moored on each side of the river, in a good position to see the finish of the race, and manifesting an interest in the contest not at all surpassed by that shown on the crowded decks of the steamers which had been engaged to carry the friends of either Trickett or Rush, and many of which were anchored in the bay opposite the Gladesville Asylum. As steamer after steamer, loaded with people, with flags flying, and, in some instances, bands playing, passed up the river the sight was a very pretty one, and the interest increased as the time for starting the race drew near, and still the people were brought from Sydney in large numbers. At half-past 3 o'clock the river banks about the winning point were very crowded, and the river, with the exception of the course in the centre kept clear, was almost covered. Time went slowly, but comments upon the competitors and good-natured badinage about one thing and another kept the people alive until a shrill cheer came down the river, and being caught up and carried from point to point, announced that the race was close at hand. The excitement became intense as the two boats, followed closely by the steamers, came round the point on which the boathouse stands, and shouts of Trickett! Trickett! were echoed in loud and enthusiastic cheering. Satisfaction displayed in the waving of hats and caps, and in continuous cheers, was shown on both sides of the river, and was increased when the ease with which Trickett was winning the race became more and more apparent. Just at this time the scene was very exciting and picturesque. The cheers of the enthusiastic multitude on shore were almost drowned in the roar and wash of the steamers which crowded down the river after the contesting boats and heeled over with the weight of their excited passengers as if they were going to capsize. The two wager boats were a little in advance, while the umpire's steamer and the Press steamer were going at a rate just sufficient to keep ahead of the large fleet behind which swooped down upon this part of the river, and slackened speed only to allow the race to finish, and the people afloat and ashore to give the winner a hearty greeting. Not the least interesting thing to be seen were the pigeons fluttering about in the air on their way to Sydney with the news of Trickett's victory. Both men passed the flagboat, Trickett cheered all the way, and then, pulling round, the victor took his boat along the Bedlam Point side of the river, giving everybody there a chance of seeing him, and an opportunity to cheer him again and again with all the strength of their lungs. Hardly had he commenced to do this than the band on his No. 1 steamer (the Kembla) struck up "See the Conquering Hero Comes," and the cheering was renewed and echoed from steamer to steamer until men became hoarse, and the steamers gradually moved ahead and made their way towards Sydney. The trip home by road from Five Dock was even more exciting than the journey out. There was such an immense number of people, vehicles, and horses, that things got mixed, and it was the most difficult thing in the world for any one to find what he wanted. Confusion reigned for a time only, however, and gradually there was a departure towards Sydney, though for more than an hour after the procession back to Sydney had started there appeared to be little or no diminution in the numbers still to go. Good service was done by a number of policemen, and the people jogged along merrily and safely, flying the blue and displaying the cornstalk, and happy, in the vast majority of cases in their winnings. It was night before very many of the crowd reached town, but the ride was all the pleasanter and all the more interesting, for as darkness came on, and the long line of vehicles faded into a dim procession of shadows, lamps were lighted, and then the immense number of vehicles filing down the road from Petersham to Camperdown and on towards the University became exceedingly pretty, and a sight well worth seeing.

A spectator, residing at Ashfield, furnishes the following interesting particulars respecting the scene in the road:—The event of to-day was quite an incident in the history of Ashfield. The number of persons who were conveyed by rail to the Ashfield and Five Dock stations to see the race for the championship between Trickett and Rush has no parallel in the statistics of railway travelling between these stations and the metropolis. Probably the department may be able to furnish a return of the traffic on the occasion. The number of horsemen and vehicles which came past Ashfield by the Parramatta Road was also without precedent even in the old coaching days, when "Homebush" was the chief sporting attraction of the metropolis. In order to arrive at some approximate estimate of the number of horsemen and vehicles which visited Bedlam Ferry, as it used to be called of old, I pulled up my buggy at the junction of Bland-street after the race was over and the Jehus were returning homeward, and counted the passing vehicles and horsemen for twenty minutes, recording the number for each minute. The result of my observations was as follows:—

1st minute	33	11th minute	31
2nd ditto	35	12th ditto	31
3rd ditto	30	13th ditto	37
4th ditto	17	14th ditto	31
5th ditto	13	15th ditto	44
6th ditto	21	16th ditto	19
7th ditto	24	17th ditto	39
8th ditto	33	18th ditto	15
9th ditto	21	19th ditto	23
10th ditto	32	20th ditto	35
In twenty minutes			588

The cavalcade continued at the same rate for 1 hour and 10 minutes. The average of the above table is 29 8-20 per minute, and the total of horses and vehicles which passed over the road (counting each vehicle as one) in the 70 minutes, was 2068. Some of these vehicles had more than three horses, and a large number of them two horses. Estimating 20 per cent. of the number at two horses, the total number of horses employed at the event, would amount, at a rough estimate, to 2470. The quantity of people carried by the various vehicles can only be conjectured, but some of the omnibuses accommodated over thirty, whilst buggies conveyed from four upwards. Some approximation might be arrived at which, with the return of those transmitted by rail, might furnish an approximate return of the enormous exodus from the metropolis, attracted by the very memorable event of the contest for the championship of the world in Australian waters.

THE RACE.

At a quarter-past 3, Rush was able to embark in a six pair from the wharf below Drury's, and with his boat was carried to the other side of the river, where he completed his preliminary arrangements, and then rowed to the start. Trickett got into his boat above Bowden's wharf, and after pulling slowly down past the umpire's steamer, gave a short spurt and turned. In appearance Rush has everything in his favour, every muscle developed, and seemingly confident of success. Trickett was also in good form, but apparently less powerful, and looking a trifle nervous. Their style of pulling also presented a marked difference, Rush's stroke not being cleanly rowed out, while his opponent's was as finished and regular as a machine. If ever a doubt existed in our minds as to the superiority of a sliding seat over a fixed one, it was dispelled when we saw the ease with which Trickett sent his boat along on Saturday. After a short delay occasioned by Trickett having to put down to his cutter for something, the pair took up their positions. Trickett next to the Ryde shore, Rush on the outside. Not more than a minute was lost in getting level, and simultaneously they caught the water at 3 hours 1 minute 30 seconds. Rush went off at 42 strokes per minute; Trickett at 39. For about fifty yards they were level, then Rush went ahead foot by foot, and passing Tyler's point he was a clear length in front. Half a mile from the start he was directly ahead of Trickett, giving him his wash, and not pulling more than forty a minute. The champion seemed to quicken as they neared Blaxland's point, till it became stroke for stroke, and the boats got into dangerous proximity. Rush, responding to his rival's effort again left a clear gap between them, and the Clarence man shot the mile mark in 5 minutes 53 seconds, leading by a length and a half. They were now coming into the straight pull, down the long reach, and Trickett was seen to look round over his left shoulder as if to gauge his opponent's position. He had as it were felt him in the previous spurt, and putting on a little more steam, drew rapidly alongside. There was an effort to keep the other boat ahead, but it was only for a moment, Trickett was not to be shaken off, and ere a mile and a half had been rowed the contest was virtually over, as Trickett was a clear length in front, rowing with apparent ease, whilst Rush was already labouring greatly. Before the Hen-and-Chickens were reached the Australian was at least six lengths ahead, when suddenly he was seen to cease pulling much to the consternation of his friends. The cause was, however, speedily apparent—he was merely waving an acknowledgment of the first hearty round of cheers he had received. As he passed One-man wharf he was simply paddling, and again stopped to wave his hands to friends ashore. This was repeated twice before he reached Bedlam Point, where at least 10,000 pairs of lungs gave vent to a perfect tempest of cheers as the champion rowed leisurely by, with Rush some five or six lengths astern pulling a game stern chase. In the last few hundred yards Trickett showed the best piece of rowing he did during the match, and, increasing his lead a length or two, finally shot by the flagboat at [illegible] seconds, Rush, who was very much exhausted at the finish, and had to contend with broken water, came in [illegible] seconds later. The affair was so completely one-sided for the last two miles that it can hardly be termed a race. Time from start to finish, taken by a chronograph held by Messrs. Allerding and Son, 23 minutes 26 3-10 seconds. The winner was piloted by Williams from a [illegible], and Green did a similar service for the loser from a six-pair. The stakes will be paid over at Punch's Hotel, this evening.

Two things have been satisfactorily demonstrated by the result of the race. In the first place, it has proved that the sliding-seat, if properly used, is an immense advantage over the old style; and, secondly, that the English trainers impart to their pupils a finish which defies the imitation of colonial mentors. Henry Kelly deserves all that Trickett has acknowledged he owed to his tuition and training. Rush, a type of physical force and traditional notions, met a less powerful man, representing the scientific result of modern experience, and, as usually happens, strength waged an unequal contest with science. Trickett's victory brings back the championship to Australia to Port Jackson, and it is to be hoped that the rowing men of Sydney will, in the future, prove equal to the task of retaining it against all comers. We need hardly say that Trickett well deserves the honours he has acquired, or that he is for the hour of the representative man of what some designate "the native party." His present rowing form is good enough to warrant the belief that he has no superior either in England or America. If there is, and possessing the laudable ambition which induced Messrs. Trickett and Punch to visit England, he will have an opportunity of gaining the coveted honour of Champion of the World more cheaply than Trickett did. The English sporting papers will be spared the necessity of making further appeals for subscriptions to pay the expense of sending Boyd or any representative rower of that province to endeavour to win back old England's lost laurels. If what we were informed on Saturday evening is correct—and we believe it to be so—it is that a cablegram will go to London to-day, challenging Boyd, or any other person holding the championship of the mother country, to come out here and row Trickett over the Parramatta River course for the sum of £1000 aside. In the event of the challenge being accepted, £300 will be paid to defray the Englishman's expenses. If an offer of this character does not result in a contest, no reasonable inducement will bring it about. The present is a good opportunity for suggesting that the Harbours and Rivers Department should have the champion course surveyed similarly to that of the Thames, so as to fix the exact distances between the start at Charity Point, and the prominent headlands or other guide marks down to the [illegible] on the Brothers Rocks. This could be accomplished for a mere trifle.

We append a sketch of the performances, &c., of the competitors:—

EDWARD TRICKETT.

The first man who has ever taken away the championship of the Thames and that of the world from British waters, was born at Greenwich, on the Parramatta River, in 1851, and stands 6 feet 3½ inches in height. When he rowed for the championship of Australia (won by Rush in 1874) his weight was 12 stone. In his Thames match he scaled 12 st. 1½ lbs., and in the race on Saturday was about 12 st. 7 lbs. His maiden effort as a public rower took place before he was fifteen years of age at the Anniversary Regatta in the race for youths under sixteen, when he was defeated. In the following year he won the prize for youths under eighteen, and then defeated M'Neale, Bullivant, and two others in a handicap race in light skiffs. He and his brother subsequently won a double scull race for all-comers under twenty-one. In 1870, when the Clarence first sent representatives to the Anniversary Regatta, the brothers Trickett were amongst the vanquished in a double-scull race, and Edward Trickett was beaten singly by Coulon in a private match over the champion course. At Balmain regatta, the same year, Trickett and Williams won the double scull race, defeating Reynolds, Connor, and the other pairs. He did not enter at Anniversary Regatta, 1871, but, with his former mate, rowed against M'Cleer and Lyons, at Balmain, where the latter won. (M'Cleer had been defeated by Trickett in a private match two years before.) Trickett then disappeared from rowing contests for a couple of years, and followed his occupation as a quarryman. In 1873 he came out again at Balmain regatta, and won a race in light skiffs from Lynch, Lyons, and Colebrook; and on the same day was one of the second crew in a whaleboat race won by Barnett's crew. He afterwards won two private matches against H. Pearce easily. The following year he defeated Laycock, Lynch, and Mulhall in the outrigger match; and was one of the winning crew in whaleboats. At Anniversary Regatta, 1875, he was in the winning gig's crew; and in the match for the championship of the colonies, won by Rush, came in second, beating Newby, Hickey, Laycock, and Green. Trickett won the all-comers race in light skiffs the same day. On November 9 he met Laycock and Lynch at Balmain, where he again won the outrigger race, and in conjunction with his brother carried off the prize for double sculls in light skiffs. Anniversary Regatta saw Trickett win the prize for all-comers in outriggers—the veteran Green being his only opponent. He also won the double sculls, with his brother, the same afternoon, the brothers Lynch coming in second. Trickett's ability, as a promising rower, had, some time before, attracted the attention of Mr. James Punch, a well-known hotelkeeper of this city, and formerly a crack oarsman, who announced his intention of taking his brother native to London and challenge Sadler, the then holder of the championship. We need hardly say that the project was carried out, that they met on June 27, rowed from Putney to Mortlake, and that the Australian proved his right to the title Sadler had won from the representative of America. Prior to leaving London, Mr. Punch having offered again to back his protégé against any who disputed his title, some friends of Lumsden's took up the challenge. The race fell through, Lumsden forfeiting, and unfortunately preventing Trickett taking part in the champion race at Philadelphia. On his return to Sydney he again won the all-comers match in outriggers at Anniversary Regatta this year, and on visiting the flagship was presented by Sir John Robertson with a cheque for £800, subscribed by the public in recognition of his English victory. Trickett's next appearance before the public was as the proprietor of an hotel in Pitt-street, where he was hardly settled ere Rush called upon him to uphold his claim to the championship of the world, and, after some preliminaries, resulting in the present contest, a match was made for £200 a side, to be rowed over the usual champion course, from Charity Point to The Brothers, in best and best boats on June 30. The Hon. R. Driver was chosen umpire and Mr. B. Palmer stakeholder, but the latter being unable to act, Mr. James Merriman, Mayor of Sydney, was chosen to fill his place. Trickett at once went into training on the river under the care of T. Williams, and has had a steady row once a day for more than a month. He is a firm believer in the efficacy of the sliding seat, and rowed on one in a boat built by Donnelly, of Sydney.

MICHAEL RUSH.

The Clarence River champion, though he has not been quite so prominently before the metropolitan residents as his competitor, boasts of a satisfactory record in rowing circles. In 1860, when fifteen years of age, he arrived in the colony from his native place, the county Tyrone, Ireland, and first learned to handle a pair of sculls on the Clarence River. He is thirty-two years of age, stands exactly six feet in height, is compact and well proportioned in frame, has great reach, and rows about 12 st. 12 lbs. The first essays, which led to subsequent success, were local matches, and when in 1868 he rowed and beat Coulon for the championship of the Clarence, he became ambitious to meet some of the metropolitan scullers. In company with Coulon he visited Sydney in January following, and the dark pair from the country astonished some of the cognoscenti by their easy victory in the all-comers' double sculls at Anniversary Regatta. After some negotiations they were induced to remain in the city for a short time to meet the brothers Trickett in a private match, in light skiffs, for £50, over the champion course. This resulted in an easy victory for the Graftonmen, as they were termed. Rush, though then by no means a finished puller, had a wonderful way of making his boat travel, and his friends thought him good enough to try conclusions with the then champion, W. Hickey, who staked £200 to £150, and won after being led four miles and a half; Rush when then beaten was far from fit on account of illness. His friends knowing this offered the same night to make another match in the same boats if Hickey would stake £300 to £200. This the latter declined to do, but his brother Richard took up the challenge, and was defeated. Rush then turned his attention to outrigger rowing, and having been backed against W. Hickey in best and best boats, lost the match through lack of experience. Another match between the pair pulling in light skiffs saw Rush the victor, who then after practising for a while in wager boats tried his then greatest effort, against W. Hickey. The match took place on the Parramatta River in February, 1873, for £200 a side and the championship. It was a good race for a short distance, but Rush quickly rowed his opponent down, and won with plenty to spare. It was then said that Hickey was not beaten on his merits, and the relative abilities of the pair remained an open question for some time. About the middle of 1874 it was proposed to hold a grand regatta on the Clarence, and Rush, who is a storekeeper in the district, offered to contribute £50 towards a prize of £200 for an outrigger race for the championship of Australia. This brought together the rowing talent then had previously taken part in contests in the colonies. Green, Trickett, and W. Hickey from Sydney, met the local representatives—Rush, Laycock, and Newby—on a three and a-half mile course. Rush went to the front soon after starting, and after stopping three times to wave his cap in response to cheers from the wharfs as he passed, won by over fifteen lengths in 19 minutes 42 seconds. Trickett second, leading Laycock by a length and a half, the latter about the same distance from Hickey. The only other match Rush rowed till the race on Saturday was at Grafton Regatta, 1875, when having injured the boat he intended pulling in, he rowed a leaky old craft, which half filled, and left Laycock the winner. In his matches with the Hickeys he was trained by Dick Green, who has also acted as his mentor for Saturday's struggle, in which he rowed a boat built by Swaffle and Winship.

EXTRAORDINARY OUTRAGE.—Near the Colac Cemetery (reports the Colac Herald), resides a decrepid old man named Joseph Watts, who carries on the trade of a bootmaker. On Friday night as he had retired with his family to bed, when about 2 o'clock his wife awoke him, saying that some one was breaking in at the back door. Mr. Watts got up and put on his clothes, when, as soon as he got to the passage, he saw that a man named John Massey had succeeded in effecting an entrance. This scoundrel then called out, "I'll make you get out of this house," and attacked the old man who is upwards of seventy-three years of age. Mrs. Watts, who had a sick baby in her arms, got out of bed, and ran to her husband's assistance, when the ruffian, calling her opprobious epithets, knocked her down. Watts, who is an old sailor, and, despite his years, a man of considerable courage, had by this time recovered from the assault by Massey, and arming himself with a stout stick, dealt a blow which laid the villain on the floor. Mrs. Watts, taking advantage of this, made her escape from the house intending to go to the nearest neighbour's, but thinking her husband might be overcome by the burglar, she hid herself in Mr. Archer's paddock hard by. Massey renewed his attack on the old man, but was knocked down a second time, and then took to his heels, in his hurry grasping Mr. Watts's hat by mistake and leaving his own. Watts then left his house to go for the police. As he went he called out for a neighbour, when he was met by a man named Patrick Molony, who it has since been ascertained was prowling about in Massey's company during the whole of the preceding day. Molony stopped the old man, and asked what he was calling out for. Mr. Watts replied, "If you are a man, go up to my house, for there is a scoundrel there killing my wife." Molony said that the old man had better go back too, and that it would be "all right" and there would be no more about it." Watts refused to go back, and also to tell Molony where he was going, when the scoundrel drew a knife, and threatened the life of Watts. The latter, who gained the [illegible] of desperation, saw that he was confronted by a confederate of Massey, and he drew a long knife which he had taken up before leaving the house, and, brandishing it about, made his way to the police station with all the speed he could; and called up senior-constable Flahive. That officer at once went back with Watts, and found Mrs. Watts still hiding in the paddock. After restoring her to her home, and putting the battered door once more on its hinges, constable Flahive went after Massey, whom he succeeded in discovering shortly before daylight near the show-ground. Molony was arrested later in the day. The prisoners were brought up at the police court yesterday before Messrs. Hamilton and Rea, when most of the above facts were deposed to, and they were remanded till Friday next.

THE RUSSO-TURKISH WAR.

LONDON, JUNE 29.

THE Russians have occupied Hirsova on the Dobrudscha side of the Danube.

A Turkish dispatch states that the Russians were attacked at Zelvin, and were defeated with heavy loss.

The Russian head quarters has been transferred to Simnitza, on the left bank of the Danube.

Russian troops have occupied Sistova, on the right bank of the Danube. The Turks have been driven from their entrenchments, and the fighting is proceeding. There is a heavy cannonade going on at the forts along the Danube, from Kalafat to Olenitza.

APPOINTMENTS.

LONDON, JUNE 28.

The appointment of Sir William Jervois as Governor of South Australia has been confirmed. Major-General Ord has been appointed Governor of Western Australia, vice Mr. W. C. F. Robinson, who has been appointed Governor of the Straits Settlements.

COMMERCIAL.

LONDON, JUNE 28.

The wool sales closed firm. There was great fluctuation during the series of sales in the first three weeks, but since then there has been a general recovery, and a good business was done at closing rates. Good combing fleeces realised one penny advance; lambs' also realised high prices. Greasy partly recovered from the fall at the opening of the series. Crossbreds were the most depressed. Out of 290,700 bales catalogued, 150,000 were taken for export, including 6000 for America; and 60,000 bales have been carried over to the next sales.

THE RUSSO-TURKISH WAR.

LONDON, JUNE 28.

YESTERDAY the Grand Duke Nicholas, at the head of the fourteenth division and eighth corps of the Russian army, crossed the Danube at Simnitza, and carried the first positions of the Turks at Sistova. Boatloads of Russians continue crossing, and fighting continues.

General Zimmerman's corps all crossed the Danube at Galatz, and have occupied Tultscha, Hirsova, and Isatchi. The Turks have abandoned the Dobrudscha.

An incessant and destructive cannonade is going on between Kalafat and Widin, and between Rustchuck and Giurgevo.

Messrs. Richardson and Wrench will sell by auction, on Monday (this day), at half-past 11, the Bangaroo station, without stock, in the Wellington district.

Messrs. Gilchrist, Stubbs, and Weston report the sales of the following properties:—Basset-Darley Estate, lot 4, section 13, £451 11s. 3d.; lots 8, 9, and 10, section 5, £800; lot 1, section 5, £264; lot 8, section 2, £198; lots 10 and 11, section 6, £530; lots 6 and 7, section 8, and 1 and 7, section 9, for £1320; cottage, Balmain, £650; 4 allotments, North Shore, £750; land, Coogee, £336 7s. 7d.; land, Washington-street, city, £720; house and grounds, Elizabeth Bay Road, £5250; property at Manly, £600; property in George-street, £4150.

We take the following from the Melbourne Argus of Thursday:—

In the import markets only a very moderate business has been reported to-day, inquiries being too much influenced by the approaching close of the half-year to admit of any transactions beyond actual requirements. Flour is still very dull and difficult to move; the remark however, does not apply to wheat, of which sales are making at 7s 6d, though there is less appearance of activity than was noticeable yesterday, nor is the market quite as strong. At auction about 400 bags were quitted at 7s 2d to 7s 5d; there was no prime offered, though 7s 6d could be got. Flour is quoted at £16 to £16 2s 6d, but only trade sales are making at the quotation, inquiries for parcels being for the present dormant. We learn that the first shipment will be made to-morrow of a considerable quantity of up-country flour, which is to go forward to another colony. Oats are easier, and 4s 1½d appears to be the highest figure now for fine milling, but this figure was refused at auction. Feeding qualities have been sold privately at 3s 10½d to 4s, while publicly 3s 10½d to 3s 11d was obtained. Maize is moving very freely at 3s 11d to 4s. Cape barley was disposed of at 3s 3½d to 3s 5d. Sugars have had more attention. We hear of a line of 1000 bags of fine brewing crystals having changed hands on private terms. Some 300 bags of ration sugars have also been placed at a slight improvement on yesterday's auction rates. Low and medium grainy yellows are in good country demand, and prices are likely to advance, as supplies are not abundant. Teas are going off quietly, the commoner descriptions of congous, at up to 10½d, being in request. A line of 200 half-chests ex Rio Loge is amongst the sales reported. The most attractive feature in this market at present, however, is the auction sale of new season's teas advertised to come off to-morrow. A large attendance of the trade is expected, as the qualities to be offered range from the finest first pickings of Foochow congous down to medium Canton and Macao descriptions. The assortment is quite equal to any of the early district teas usually offered here at the commencement of the season, and the various qualities are, moreover, most suitable for trade requirements. Kerosene oil is now coming forward very freely. The Locksley Hall and Alice M. Minott, which have just arrived from New York, have 35,000 cases on board, but of the last-named vessel's shipment 10,000 cases are for Adelaide, the remainder being for this port. Business has been reported to-day, a line of 3000 cases of Devoe's having changed hands on private terms. In dried fruits, currants presented a decidedly easier tone. Holders are now offering at 5d., and we understand that sales have been made at the price. Telegrams having been received from Manila to the effect that cigar sales have been suspended since April, the market here and in Sydney has been cleared by one firm of all offering, to the extent of 150 cases, and holders now ask 80s. to 85s. for cheroots and cigars. An auction sale of Childrey's tobaccos was held this forenoon, when 64 packages were disposed of at prices varying according to condition and quality. Hennessy's case brandy is offering at 31s., without attracting much notice.

MINING REPORT.

LONG TUNNEL G. M. Co., Walhalla.—The local secretary reports on 25th June as follows:—"The extent driven during the fortnight was 15 feet. I feel justified in stating that we have now passed through our greatest difficulty, and that, henceforth our progress will be more rapid than hitherto; judging by appearances, the contractors will be called upon to resume work in about a fortnight. The granite is changing, and getting easier to work. Every yard driven brings it more to the appearance of the usual bed rock. The hard bar has been completely worked through, and the harder of the rock is in occasional boulders and kernels in partially decomposed granite."

The manager of the Band and Albion G.M. Co., Ballarat, reports by telegram that the yield for last week was 89 oz. 7 dwts.

MELBOURNE LIVE STOCK MARKET.

[RICHARD GIBSON AND CO.]

FAT Cattle.—1326 head were entered, nearly the whole of which came forward, the bulk being again principally inferior to medium quality, but a greater proportion of those shown to-day were better than usual. Trade was very healthy, best sorts being readily purchased at last week's rates, whilst other descriptions were a shade easier. We quote best beef from 30s to 32s 6d per 100 lbs., and have sold 55 bullocks for Mr. William Murphy, from Blackwood Park, at from £10 to £14 15s, averaging £13; 40 cows and bullocks for Mr. P. Cooke, Pyalong, up to £9; 31 bullocks for Mr. John Calvert, Bairnsdale, up to £10 10s, averaging £9 4s 3d; 76 cows and bullocks for Mr. John Balpan, Pyalong, up to £14; 15 cows and bullocks for Mr. William Eades, Pyalong, up to £11 10s; 8 cows for Mr. Thomas Anderson, Rosedale; 6 cows and bullocks for Mr. D. Walsh, Pyalong, up to £7 2s 6d, and small drafts for Mr. James Feehan, Sunbury; the executors of the late A. M'Millan, Caldermeade, B. E. Hawley, Corowa, up to £10 0s.

Fat Calves.—A large supply forward viz., 150 head. Our prices rule to about 5s to 9s per head lower. We have sold 54 for the executors of the late A. M'Millan, Caldermeade, at from 33s to 52s, averaging 42s 6d.

Fat Sheep.—14,500 forward, consisting principally of useful quality, with a few prime lots amongst them, the balance being only very little better than stores. Sales for best description were brisker, at prices about 6d per head in advance of last week's currencies, others without alteration. We quote best merino wethers at 15s 6d to 16s 6d (a few extra up to 17s 6d), good 13s to 14s, seconds 11s to 12s, others 7s 6d upwards; best merino ewes 10s to 11s, seconds 8s to 9s, others 5s upwards; best crossbred wethers 21s to 25s (a few higher), seconds 17s 6d to 20s, others 12s 6d upwards; best crossbred ewes 18s to 21s, extra up to 24s, seconds 14s to 17s, others 10s upwards. We sold 2700 ewes and wethers for Mr. James Tyson, from Juanbung station; 1402 finest wethers for Messrs. Landale, Brothers, Deniliquin; 216 ewes, for Mr. G. Hope, Darrivell; 159 wethers, from the westward; 125 ewes, for Messrs. J. and J. M'George, Gisborne; 35 for Messrs. Gooch, Brothers, Piper's Creek; prices ranging up to 14s for merino wethers, to 11s for merino ewes, and 15s to 16s for crossbred ewes; also, outside, 661 wethers for Messrs. Ritchie, Brothers, Gowrie Park.

Fat Lambs.—670 was the number penned, the majority of which were of fair quality, and met with a brisk sale at satisfactory figures, best making 10s 6d to 11s 6d; seconds, 8s 6d to 9s 6d; others, 6s upwards. We sold 10s for Messrs. Gooch, Brothers, Piper's Creek; 72 for Mr. H. A. W. Lodf, Terrick Terrick; best 52, for Messrs. J. and J. M'George, Gisborne, prices ranging up to 11s 6d per head.

Store Stock: This market is without alteration, and will doubtless remain so for some time until the season is more advanced, but there is every reason to believe that all classes of both breeding and fattening ages of stock will rule higher. Quotations unaltered. We have sold 800 crossbred Leicester ewes for the executors of the late Walter Clark, Glenara.—June 28

W. PRITCHARD will sell by public auction, at his Rooms, 281, George-street, on THURSDAY, July 12, at 11 o'clock,

All that corner block of land, having frontages of 33 feet to Parramatta Road, 108 feet to Smith-street, and 33 feet to Junction-street, upon which is erected a most substantial building, known as
built of brick on stone foundation, slated roof.
It contains bar, dry cellar, two parlours, dining-room, four large bedrooms, and kitchen.
SIX-STALL STABLE and coach-house, city water and gas laid on, splendid drainage.
This house has the advantage as to situation of any other on the road, being a CORNER STAND,
the centre of a populous and increasing neighbourhood, the first house on the main road leading to the southern and and eastern suburbs, and close to the COLLEGES, various PUBLIC INSTITUTIONS, and HORSE SALE YARDS.
The premises have just been painted throughout, are in excellent order, and Immediate possession can be obtained.

TITLE, FREEHOLD.

THIS DAY, MONDAY.

WELLINGTON DISTRICT.

IMPROVED STATION, without stock,
BANGAROO,
situated at the junction of the LACHLAN and BELLABULA RIVERS, about 35 miles from the town of ORANGE, and the same distance from FORBES, and containing 13,000 acres of well grassed, open, ridgy country. The purchased and selected lands comprise 1200 acres, judiciously taken up, most having pre-emptive leases attached. The water supply is ample, provided by rivers, creeks, and springs. The carrying capabilities of the run could be greatly increased by fencing, which could be erected at small cost, owing to the shape of the country.

The Improvements include a good roomy verandah Cottage, Woolshed to cover 80 bales wool, Drafting and other Yards, Huts, some Fencing, &c.

The attention of capitalists and others is invited to the above, which is suited for depasturing either sheep or cattle. Communication with the metropolis is frequent and easy, the railway being now open to Orange.

RICHARDSON and WRENCH have received instructions to sell by public auction, at the Rooms, Pitt-street, Sydney, THIS DAY, 2nd JULY, at 11 o'clock,

The above small pastoral property, an inspection of which is requested. Fuller particulars may be obtained at the Rooms.

Terms at sale.

CAMPERDOWN ESTATE

SPECIAL TERMS.

TWENTY-FIVE PER CENT. CASH, THE BALANCE IN TWO YEARS, BEARING INTEREST AT SIX PER CENT. PER ANNUM.

HARDIE and GORMAN,
Bell's-chambers, 175, Pitt-street.

SNAIL' BAY, BALMAIN.

CHOICE BUILDING SITE,
Wharf Road, next Exeter Villa and CORNISH'S property, only a few yards from the STEAMERS' WHARF.

RICHARDSON and WRENCH have received instructions to sell by public auction, at the Rooms, Pitt-street, on FRIDAY, 6th July, at 11 o'clock, SNAIL'S BAY, BALMAIN, ALL THAT piece of land, having 30 FEET frontage to WHARF ROAD, or SMITH-STREET, with a depth of 103 FEET on one side, and 106 FEET on the other.

☞ The above site is most beautifully situated on the elevated ground in this delightful part of Balmain. It has the North-eastern aspect, and commands a fine harbour view, with the great recommendation of being in the immediate vicinity of all the pretty villas in the locality.

Plan at the Rooms.
Terms at sale.

NEWTOWN.
Close to the RAILWAY STATION.

VALUABLE CORNER BLOCK of LAND, REGENT and BEDFORD STREETS, being lots 86 and 87, Section 5, of the North Kingston Estate, Newtown.

It has about the following frontages:—
159 feet to REGENT-STREET.
54 feet to BEDFORD-STREET.
49½ feet to a LANE.

 This corner block of land is most favourably situated on the North Kingston Estate, Newtown, north of the Railway line, only a few yards east of the Station. A very good site for business premises.

RICHARDSON and WRENCH have received instructions to sell by public auction, at the Rooms, Pitt-street, on FRIDAY, 6th July, at 11 o'clock,

The above. Plan at the Rooms.

CAPITAL CITY INVESTMENT.

GEORGE-STREET NORTH.
THOSE THREE-STORY BUSINESS PREMISES, No. 109, GEORGE-STREET, known as FREEHILL'S BAKERY ESTABLISHMENT, close to the CIRCULAR QUAY.

RICHARDSON and WRENCH have received instructions to sell by public auction, at Rooms, Pitt-street, on FRIDAY, 6th July, at 11 o'clock.

ALL THAT piece of land having 20 FEET 4 Inches frontage to GEORGE-STREET NORTH, with a depth of 90 FEET, and a width at the rear of 40½ FEET to a roadway upon which are erected THOSE FAITHFULLY-BUILT stone and brick three-story business premises, No. 109, known as FREEHILL'S BAKERY ESTABLISHMENT, containing shop, 6 rooms, with kitchen and cellar in the basement; also a brick building at the rear, comprising bakehouse, with oven and store, &c., good yard, back entrance from a lane, water laid on, &c.
Rental, £3 10s per week, or £182 per annum.

☞ The above is a centrally situated, and in every respect very desirable permanent city investment, close to the CIRCULAR QUAY and the SHIPPING, a part of the city where business premises are greatly in demand, and one (from the extensive improvements about to be made in the neighbourhood in connection with the CIRCULAR QUAY and adjacent wharf properties) in which real estate, more especially business premises, must rapidly increase in value and be eagerly sought after.

The premises are in good tenantable repair, and finished in a substantial manner, with imposing cut stone front, and wide verandah awning over the footpath.

Inspection is invited prior to day of sale.

Plan on view at the Rooms.

Terms at sale.

CITY LANDS.

LOT 1.—GOULBURN-STREET.

COTTAGE No. 74 and large BLOCK of LAND on the north side of Goulburn-street, between Pitt and Castlereagh streets, and abutting on the property of Mr. H. S. Gibson.

The LAND has 35½ FEET frontage to Goulburn-street, with a depth of 96½ FEET on one side, and 85½ FEET on the other, and a width at rear of 38½ feet.

The Cottage is at present let to Messrs. Assonheim and Barnett, and contains four rooms, sheds, large yard drained to the sewer, &c., at the rear.

 A favourably situated city freehold, close to George-street and Belmore Markets.

Title, Torrens' Act.

LOT 2.—HUTCHINSON-STREET, SURRY HILLS, off Fitzroy-street, between Bourke and Dowling streets.

VALUABLE BUILDING ALLOTMENT, lot 21A, of Flood's subdivision, having the following frontages:—16 feet to the east side of Hutchinson-street, 100 feet to a side lane, and 16 feet to a lane at the rear.

 A first-class building site on the heights of Surry Hills, a few yards from Moore Park, and divided by a lane from Dimond's-terrace in Fitzroy-street.

RICHARDSON and WRENCH have received instructions to sell by public auction, at the Rooms, Pitt-street, on FRIDAY, 6th July, at 11 o'clock,

The above city properties.

UNRESERVED SALE.

BY ORDER of the DIRECTORS of the GUYONG COPPER MINING COMPANY (limited).

SEVERAL BLOCKS of FREEHOLD LAND, in all 86 acres 3 roods 30 perches, being purchases from the CROWN, situated in and near the TOWN OF BYNG,
12 miles from ORANGE, about 24 miles from BATHURST, and adjoining the CARANGARA COPPER MINE and SMELTING WORKS;
together with all improvements thereon, comprising a Stone DWELLING of 6 rooms and outbuildings, now let as a GENERAL STORE, at the nominal rental of £30 per annum.

Several quartz reefs are known to be on the land, some of them gold-bearing, one being 5 feet wide, on which a shaft has been sunk 20 feet, the reef at that depth continuing the same width. Mint assays of stone from this reef have given 1½ dwts. of gold to the ton.

Other portions of the land have numerous quartz reefs and copper lodes, passing through them, from which good ores have been obtained, but the land has never been properly tested.

The greater portion of the land is good agricultural soil, and well watered by the LEWIS PONDS and CARANGARA CREEKS, and has been partially fenced.

RICHARDSON and WRENCH have received instructions to sell by public auction, at the Rooms, Pitt-street, Sydney, on

FRIDAY, 6th July, at 11 o'clock,

The above-described freehold lands, which must be disposed of in accordance with a resolution of the shareholders to wind up the affairs of the company.

Further particulars may be obtained at the Rooms, Pitt-street, Sydney.

Terms at sale.

POTTIE'S SCOTTISH HIGHLAND OIL, the best and cheapest cure for Coughs, Colds, Sore Throat, Quinsy, Bronchitis, Chest Diseases, and all winter complaints, such as Earache, Toothache, and Stiff Neck in children, women, and men.

A great many people are cured instantly by rubbing on the oil and fixing over a bandage dipped in warm water and covered with a dry one. The proper way to use the oils is to foment first, then rub in the oils, bandage, and smooth the bandage down with a warm smoothing iron. As this cannot be easily done with children, you must heat the bandage and wrap it round warm.

Earache and Neuralgia may be instantly cured by rolling up a pepper-corn or capsicum seed in a bit of wool or silk, dipping it into the oil, and putting all into the ear, rub also the temples, and all hot and inflamed spots.

Toothache may be cured in any child by simply rubbing the sore cheek, and bandaging up.

Mustard poultices should be made up with "Pottie's Scottish Highland Oil." This is the most powerful and least painful.

THE TRUE PRACTICE OF CHEAP FEEDING.

AUSTRALIAN CONDIMENTAL FOOD!

The idea of invigorating the system of animals by a kind of medicinal feed is a very old one, and quite in keeping with nature, &c. All of us know that the best thing to invigorate the system of Horses and Cattle is good new spring grass or burnt feed, but this cannot always be had, but it can always be imitated; feed can be so prepared that it becomes identical in its action to new spring grass or burnt feed. This Condimental Food does this very thing, and is, therefore, of great value to all people interested in feeding at the most cheap rate.

The idea of mixing tonic food in ordinary feed for animals is now extensively practised in all countries, simply because it is found to pay, and no form of feeding is of any use unless it pays.

You must often have noticed that at times you may feed an animal as you like, give him double the quantity, and he will not improve; to carry this on is a great loss, but its a great saving to be able for the usual outlay of feeding to save all this.

When you buy this Australian Condimental Food, it is not so much more money spent beyond that which you usually spend for feeding, for in buying this food and using it the improvement is so great in the beasts, that less of the usual food is required; instead, therefore, of being a loss it is a saving; it costs you less to feed with this Condimental Food than without it.

This must be plain, even to the most brainless of men. I am aware that some people are so right-down pigheaded that they cannot even see this, but the cost of both ways can be easily made.

See what it costs you to keep your horses in the old way and notice these conditions. Then, after using this food for a month, observe the condition of your horses, and how much less it takes to keep them; do the same with your cows.

One man found that by adding 2d worth of Condimental Food a day he got a quart more milk, that was 8d for his 2d; he doubled it and got 1½ quart, or 1s for his 4d worth of Condimental Food. I had a cow of my own that fell off to 4 quarts a day, fed on bran and hay; in three days after she got the tonic food she gave 8 quarts a day and 1 lb. more butter a week; and the same way with the condition of animals, although the result in their case is not so easily seen or proved; but if you wish to get more work out of an animal and keep him in health, use the Condimental Food; and if you want to fatten calves for market, or get fine young animals, this is the thing to do it.

It is of great importance to catch an early market with lambs and calves, and this is the feed for them. You can buy it from any Storekeeper or Corn Dealer, or from the manufacturer.

Sold first quality at £20 a ton, 20s. the 100 lbs., 11s. the 50 lbs., 6s the 25 lbs., 3s 6d the 12 lbs.; second quantity £16 the ton, 16s the 100 lbs., 9s the 50 lbs., 5s the 25 lbs., 3s the 12 lbs. For sending long distances it can be made up in a highly concentrated form four times the strength, so that 1 ton is worth 4 tons of the ordinary. This is a great saving in carriage; parties therefore being forced to travel sheep should take this food with them in the dray, as it may be mixed with the correct kind of food.

I need not remind those who know that measures of a special kind have to be adopted in particular countries, where long marches have to be undertaken across barren deserts, where no feed but the coarsest herbage can be found. A knowledge of this fact enables one to prepare a food which can be put up in small compass.

Sheep and cattle forced to live on leaves and branches of trees show the bad effects and die, but a great deal of this may be avoided after a very cheap fashion. The same condition is observable in the winter time when grass is poor and innutritious.

Those people ought to know that the successful system of feeding is to mix rich food with weak coarse stuff, that is, for cattle and sheep. In this way animals in England, Ireland, and Scotland are kept fat in winter as easily as in summer.

Spring grasses are good, but dangerous, and by their laxative and purgative properties destroy the lives of many animals. This may be avoided by using the Condimental Food; but if your animals are bad, give them a drink of Pottie's Drench; this will cure them quickly.

Autumn feed again is liable to produce swelling of the paunch and death. Condimental Food will prevent this; but should you allow animals to swell, the most rapid way to cure them is to make an opening in the paunch and pour in some of "Pottie's Hovan Drench."

I need not dwell on the lessons nature teaches us. All true breeders know that mixed feeds judiciously mixed are the best. Mixed grasses are not only the most healthy, but also the most fattening. Now all this can be imitated by artificial feeding, so that paddocks not now of a fattening kind are converted into fattening. I can even mix you up a food which possesses all the properties of a spring grass, and I much more powerful, and a feed which will not purge as spring grass does. Send and say what you require, and it can be supplied nearly as cheaply as you can grow feed.

HOW TO PRODUCE NEW GRASSES AND CONVERT BREEDING OR STORE PADDOCKS INTO FATTENING ONES.

This may be accomplished by the use of "Pottie's Tonic" or Condimental feeds with Cattle, Sheep, and Horses.

The animals while being fed on the food should be allowed to go in those paddocks you require to improve during wet.

In this way you not only feed the animal but improve your paddock with new grasses, and it is not only a more certain way, but also a cheaper plan than sowing.
